St. John's Hospital Sends Out Nine More Young Women to Care for the Sick and Injured

1921 GRADUATING CLASS OF ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL

Nine nurses in the training school of St. John's hospital received their diplomas yesterday afternoon after having completed a three years' course. There were no formal exercises to mark the occasion. The graduates will leave the hospital to take up various positions awaiting them.

In recognition of the occasion, the nurses held a good time in the reception hall last evening with just a few of their friends present as guests. The evening's entertainment comprised a one-act comedy, "Her First Assignment," relating in a most entertaining manner the experiences of a nurse on her first case. The cast of characters was as follows: "Mrs. Alice Gordon Sterling," a young matron, Miss Evelyn Conant; "Wilberta Gordon," (Bilby) her sister, Miss Joyce Brennan; "Mrs. Craig Winter," Miss Annie Barrett; "Mrs. Harrison Follingsbee," Mary St. Thomas; "Mrs. Rose Mary Stevens," Miss Elizabeth McCullough; "Frances Kiddle," Miss Katherine Flynn; "Jacquith Carlisle," Miss Alice Mack; "Madge Hastings," Miss Nan Sheehan; "Mary Stoddard," Miss Edith Powers; "Jessie," Mrs. Sterling's maid, Miss Katherine Keohane. The comedy was ably staged under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth McKella and Mrs. Cecil Hosmer. After the comedy Miss Joyce Brennan gave a reading, "Packing the Wrong Tom Cat," and Miss Elizabeth McCullough read the class prophecy and class history. A buffet luncheon was served and dancing enjoyed.

The members of the graduating class were: Miss Sarah Fox; Miss Sarah McDonald; Brockton; Miss Sadie Rooney; Lowell; Miss Inez McKenney; Lowell; Miss Francis Payne, Danvers; Mrs. Aurora Charlier, Lawrence; Miss Margaret L. Delmore, Lowell; Miss Katherine Robinson and Miss Pearl Sager, Lowell.

A severe arraignment was given to police methods and testimony by Attorney Raymond J. A. Hamilton on the Fair grounds Nov. 6, 1920.

Testimony that had previously been offered in the case had been to the effect that several police officers had been detailed to break up Sunday crap games on the Fair grounds and that Gill, claiming to have been an innocent spectator, had started to run when a cry was raised that the police

NEW YORK, June 8.—Declaring that it would be the height of folly for the United States to disarm first, Secretary of War Weeks in an address today to the graduating class of New York university said he hoped to see this nation prepared to defend its rights, its sovereignty and its citizens until the day comes when all nations by mutual consent dismantle their fortifications and scrap their navies. The university conferred upon Secretary Weeks the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

HALIFAX, N. S., June 8.—The British freighter Seapool struck an iceberg off the Newfoundland coast today, and slowly is making for St. John's, with her forefoot broken and her forepeak full of water. The position given by the Seapool was 48.20 north latitude, 48.50 west longitude, or approximately 300 miles easterly from New Foundland. The message follows:

"S. S. Seapool collided with iceberg 48.20 north, 48.50 west. Forefoot broken. Making water in forepeak. Proceeding slowly to St. John's, N. F. Does not require immediate assistance."

THEY SPRING NEW ONES EVERY MINUTE

The report of an unusual theft has been received at police headquarters, and the authorities are asked to look for the two young men alleged to have perpetrated it. The Youden-Smith Hopkins truckers of Boston state that one of their employes was bringing a load of blue cloth from the Wood mills at Lawrence to the American Woolen company of New York, when between Reading and Stoneham two young men in a Dodge car cut the rope binding the load, and caused four bales to fall to the road. They escaped with the four bales, but being pursued in a machine which the truck driver summoned to his assistance, they dropped three bales, and got away finally with only one. They are described as about twenty years of age and wearing army shirts.

Babe Ruth Sent to Prison for Day And Fined $100 for Speeding

NEW YORK, June 8.—Babe Ruth, the home run king, today was sentenced to one day in the city prison, and fined $100 for automobile speeding. It was his second appearance in court here within the last few weeks for speeding. At his first trial, when he escaped with a nominal fine, he promised to be good and observe the laws. Six days ago, however, he was caught speeding on Riverside Drive, and arrested.

GRADUATION EXERCISES AT TEXTILE SCHOOL

The Lowell Textile school commencement exercises were held this afternoon for a large crowd. The conferring of degrees and the presentation of diplomas to the members of the class of 1921 concluded a program featured by an address by Dallas Lore Sharp, Litt. D. The music of the occasion was by Hibbard's orchestra. The exercises began at 2:30 p. m. with an overture, "Romantic," by Kalnau. Then followed an introduction by President Charles H. Barnes, S. B. of the institution. Doctor Sharp's address was the next number, and after Tschalkowsky's Reverie, "Visions" by the orchestra, there was the presentation of the medal of the National Association of Manufacturers.

LOWELL TRAFFIC CLUB MEETING

The Lowell Traffic club held its last meeting of the present season last evening at the rooms of the chamber of commerce with John A. McKenna presiding as chairman. There were about 30 members present and they were addressed by two very prominent railroad men, H. C. Snyder, general freight agent of the Erie railroad, of New York, and H. C. McFadden, general agent of the Norfolk Southern railroad. Mr. McFadden comes from Boston.

Chairman McKenna said he believed that the membership of the club could be increased to 100 or more when the organization meets again in the fall. Mr. Snyder and Mr. McFadden each spoke interestingly on present railroad conditions. A chicken dinner was served.

Mary—Like All of Us— Wants "Something Different"

ON THE RIGHT, MARY PICKFORD. THE LITTLE BOY IS MARY, TOO. THESE ARE HER DUAL CHARACTERS IN "LITTLE LORD FAULTIEROY"

BY JAMES W. DEAN

Our Mary, our little Mary, wants to grow up. She says she's bound down by the limitations of childhood roles.

"There is nothing finer than interpreting child life," declares Mrs. Doug. "But all my life I've wanted to do something equally as good in a grown-up part."

"Now that I'm a producer I have to consider what is good business, and for me it is good business to be a little girl in spite of my ambitions. I hope it will be different some day. I want to contribute something else to the photoplay, even if I could do it only once successfully."

Mary, four feet eleven and weighing 100 pounds, has been doing child parts for 12 years. The movie public has come to know her and to think of her in such roles—and to love her. But Mary is like all the rest of us restless creatures. We always want more than we have, no matter what or how much we have.

Theda Bara gained fame, favor and wealth as a vampire. Then she essayed the speaking stage in an attempt to make people forget her as a vamp. The attempt met with indifferent success.

Some day we may look to see Charlie Chaplin as Hamlet, or Charlie Hay as a villain, or Will Rogers as a nation's idol, or Olga Petrova as a boyden, but they will be remembered as the characters which first brought them fame.

Getting back to Mary—she will play both child and grown-up roles in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." She will be the little lord and his mother, dearest.

HEALTH

Send name and address for personal reply to information editor, U. S. Public Health Service, Washington, D. C.

BY UNCLE SAM, M. D.

HEADACHES

I suffer with terrible headaches at the base of the brain and across the forehead. These headaches come as often as two, four and six weeks and last from two to four days. After terrible pain for a day, I become very sick and nauseated.

It is impossible merely on the basis of your letter to determine the cause of your headaches. Many different conditions could cause them. Only a very careful examination by a qualified physician, supplemented, perhaps, by examinations by various specialists, could hope to discover and remove the source of the trouble.

Periodic headaches come with arterial trouble, especially with hardening of the arteries, and are then usually associated with increased attacks of high blood pressure. Perhaps the commonest form of recurring headache is due to constipation.

Encephalitis Lethargica

The doctors thought I had neuritis and typhoid fever about a year ago, but discovered just recently, in a hospital that I had had encephalitis lethargica, or sleeping sickness. They told me at the hospital that there was nothing but the effects of encephalitis lethargica, and that they could not do much for it; that I would have to wear it away. My left arm aches nearly all the time, and I am very nervous, and my jaw jerks most of the time. Is there any place where progress has been made in treating encephalitis, or is there anything that can be done for it?

Encephalitis lethargica is an obscure disorder, which has been fairly prevalent in the last few years. If you have recovered from the acute stage of the trouble, you have been correctly advised by the doctors when they told you that the rest of it will have to be left to time. Experience indicates that it is often many months before the patient is restored to health. Do not let this discourage you, but be thankful that you have come through this serious disease so well. Lead a normal life in every way. See that you get plenty of good food, fresh air, rest, mental diversion and a proper amount of suitable exercise.

Hemorrhages

A person who has tuberculosis is in the city sanatorium here to be cured. He has been having hemorrhages. After a person like this has been having hemorrhages, is it possible to cure him?

Even when a person has hemorrhages, complete recovery is sometimes possible. In fact hemorrhage is sometimes an early symptom of tuberculosis. Let the patient remain in the sanatorium and follow the doctor's advice.

Obesity

I am a girl of 23, medium height and build, but have very large hips. I have tried everything I know to reduce, but so far I have not been able to do so. I have taken morning exercises, tried drinking the juice of a lemon before breakfast, and at the present time I am taking a wine glass of salt, but I cannot reduce, no matter what I do.

There is no way in which you can reduce one part of the body without reducing generally. If you will send me your name and address I will send you a leaflet dealing with obesity.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

A. F. L. Plans Big Organization Drive for Members

An intensive organization drive is to be started this month by the American Federation of Labor, according to President Samuel Gompers.

Gompers' statement contains allegations that the employers, realizing the open shop drive has failed, are now attacking labor organization through a scheme of representation.

A recommendation introduced at the National Manufacturers' association in New York, that workers should be represented on boards of directors of corporations, is merely a "sop" to workers, Gompers charges, and is intended to encourage the disorganization of organized labor.

Sincerity of the employers can best be shown through the medium of the pay envelope, Gompers states.

During the coming drive, the message of trade unionism will be carried to every corner of the nation, in so far as possible, Gompers says.

Issue Statements

The right of labor to organize and bargain collectively is recognized in a book issued by the National Catholic Welfare council through Fathers John A. Ryan and R. A. McGowan.

The book suggests, in answer to the question of what should be done to settle the economic dispute:

Recognition of the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively, a gradual change of status for the worker, so that he will be a partner rather than a servant in production; hence labor participation in manage-

Reject 10-Hour Plan

Employees of the Erie railroad shops at Meadville, Pa., overwhelmingly rejected a proposal of 10 hours a day, with full-time employment guaranteed.

The scale in effect was time and a half for the first two hours over eight.

Child Labor Figures

That more permits for children to work were issued in 1920 than in any year since 1913, with the exception of 1915, is indicated by figures gathered by the United States department of labor in 12 representative cities.

The number issued in 1920 was 76,194 against 67,169 in 1913.

War production during 1918 caused that year to set a record in child labor.

The cities from which the figures were taken are Baltimore, Bridgeport, Buffalo, Manchester, Minneapolis, New Haven, New Orleans, New York, Rochester, St. Louis, Toledo and Watertbury.

Labor Notes

Anthracite and bituminous coal miners in future will combine forces in negotiating wage scales and working conditions, according to plans adopted at a meeting of representatives of each.

Union steamfitters of Memphis, Tenn., have established a company to do all kinds of heating, ventilating, pipe-fitting and factory work. The action was a result of a disagreement with employers on terms.

A bill has been introduced in the Wisconsin legislature providing sickness insurance for all workmen of the state.

By a large vote, employees of Wilson Co., Chicago packers, decided to join in conference with representatives of the company to plan enlargement of workers' powers in adjustments of problems of industrial relations.

Declaring operative and proposed wage cuts out of all proportion to the decrease in the cost of living, members of the Building Trades union in New Jersey are urging a co-operative movement whereby the union men will build their own houses.

The Anthracite Tri-District convention, usually held in August, has been postponed until after the convention of the United Mine Workers of America in September.

The 50-weeks' strike of the molders and core makers of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y., has been called off by the local.

Timothy Healey was re-elected president of the Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen at the convention in Wheeling, W. Va., Newark, N. J., was chosen as the next convention city.

LASSIE PRAISES THE DOUGHBOYS

Is Principal Speaker at Meeting of the Lowell Congregational Club

Praising the gallantry and chivalry of the doughboys in the world war, saying that during weeks that she was alone with strange troops near the front line trenches she felt as safe as in her own home, Miss Irene McIntyre drew graphic word pictures of life in the battle-scarred area of France at the last meeting of the Lowell Congregational club in the Highland church last night. During the evening reports were read, officers were elected and there was solo singing by Miss Hazel P. Tuttle.

"The greatest affliction of our boys in France during the early days of the war," asserted Miss McIntyre, "was that they sorely missed their mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts. The necessity of providing a home atmosphere for the boys was early realized by the Salvation Army. Out of our determination to provide this grew the frying of doughnuts. We wished to provide some simple, home-like food that would be slightly sweet, and we found that the one we could most successfully make on our cooking apparatus was the doughnut."

On the Marne

Miss McIntyre told of her early experiences at the front along the Marne. She said that she carried on her work out of doors with snow on the ground and icicles melting and dripping water from overhead. Later she went into a hut where water came in through the roof and dropped into the melted doughnut fat. She said that some days her party cooked 2400 doughnuts and 100 pies, and that water poured

The speaker told of her first meeting with the boys of the 26th Division. "For 35 hours," she said, "the boys had been without warm food." She said that hot coffee and cocoa were quickly provided and that the men stretched out their hands quivering with fatigue to receive it. The speaker told of her first experiences under shell fire and of the rush to a dugout in which she stayed for several hours with water and mud up to the knees. She said that "people had asked her since her return if she was afraid when shells were bursting overhead and that she had not been able to tell whether or not she was frightened. She said that in times of great danger her knees behaved strangely, and she told of another army lassie who, when the shell began to scream, put a helmet on her head, crawled under a small table and began to giggle."

Miss McIntyre described her experience when the Germans broke through the American line and she was given 20 minutes to get out of town. She told of her efforts to save trinkets which had been given to her by the boys as they were going into action with instructions to send them home to friends and relatives if they did not come back. The flight, with shrieking shrieking overhead and deep mud under foot was graphically pictured, and the speaker told of her first meeting with General Edwards and of his kindness to herself.

Gas and Liquid Fire

The speaker gave a stirring description of gas attacks and the use of liquid fire and of a daylight raid in which a large party of American soldiers were wiped out by fire from machine guns nested in trees.

The story of a long night ride up to the front line trenches was told by the speaker. She described the battle-scarred hills and fields as they appeared in the ghastly light of the moon on a cold of the boys—Catholics, Protestants and Jews, boys of all creeds and faiths and of none—joining in singing "Gloria, My God, To Thee" at the midnight hour.

In closing Miss McIntyre said that she returned from France to find that the war had largely broken down class and other barriers. She spoke of the need of co-operation to meet the great problems of today. She appealed to the churches to prevent the creation again of class and caste barriers and said that America is responsible for the future of the world because to it has been given a greater vision than to any other nation.

During the evening a report was read by Secretary-Treasurer Louis Alexander, in which it was shown that the club now has 255 members and a substantial sum in the treasury.

Movies Could Not Do Better

Rev. A. E. Jenkins of North Chelmsford, in delivering the report of the home work committee, spoke of more than 1000 people being in attendance at the First Congregational church last Sunday to greet a new pastor and said, "Few movie shows could do better than that." He referred to Rev. A. G. Lyon of the First Congregational church as having gathered in something of the "spirit of the Lion of Judah," and mentioned the work of the church in planting trees and shrubs and expressed a wish that other Congregational churches might similarly beautify their grounds.

He said that in the Elliot church it had been found necessary to re-cover the pew cushions because "people stayed so long in church." He said that the work in the Draught, Tyngsboro and Chelmsford churches is flourishing and said that the North Chelmsford church is drawing larger crowds than either the dance hall or the movies.

The retiring president, Haven G. Hill, referred to the fact that the club has had a 100 per cent increase in treasury and 35 per cent increase in membership during the year.

Rev. A. S. Reals, newly elected president, greeted the members of the club in behalf of the Highland church. "We ought to be better Christians and better Americans this year than ever before," he said. The word "loyalty" should make a special appeal to us. We should be loyal to our churches wherever we go. We should appreciate the fact that the spirit of Concordia is in the same that underlies the institutions of our republic."

Officers Elected

During the evening the following officers of the club were elected:

President, Rev. A. S. Reals; Vice-president, Charles L. Randall; Secretary and treasurer, Louis Alexander.

Home work committee: Rev. E. A. Jenkins, Rev. John G. Lovell, D.D., Rev. A. G. Lyon, Rev. J. M. Craig, Rev. W. B. Tuttle, D.D., Rev. Arthur C. McGiffert, Jr., Rev. P. E. Thomas. Social committee: W. A. Lamson, Otis W. Butler, S. H. Thompson, Mrs. Walter Muzzey, A. D. Milliken, William T. Ficken, Dr. V. E. Darling, Miss Marion Wilson, Fred Ingham, Mrs. A. F. Grant, Miss Louisa Blanchard, Mrs. S. INTEREST ON BONDS PAYABLE 15TH INST.

More than $11,000,000 will be payable to New England holders of Liberty Bonds and Victory notes on June 15. This would figure nearly $5, on the average, for each of the 1,755,613 original subscribers to the two loans. It is the interest on the first loan—$4,484,438 and 2nd 4's under that issue—as originally made and after the conversions—and the Victory loan—$6,515,562 and 4's, totalling $11,000,000. The amounts that will be payable in this district on June 15, both to holders of bearer and registered bonds, are as follows:

First loan—$4,484,438; 4's, $181,156; 4's, $753,156; 2nd—$4,484,438; Victory notes—$4,484,438; and 4's, $1,290,053. The subscribers as originally recorded in New England were: First loan, $70,791 and Victory loan, $117,202. Throughout the country the interest payments due at this time will total $132,219,000, which is a substantial evidence of the United States treasury's policy of paying its debts in full when they fall due. Not one person among the 66,350,000 purchasers of Liberty Bonds and Victory notes in the entire country ever has had to wait a day beyond the date fixed on the bond coupons for the collection of his interest. The principal will be paid with equal promptness.

AGAINST PRICE FIXING COMBINATIONS

NEW YORK, June 8.—The New York legislature at its next session will be asked to erect stronger legal barriers against price fixing combinations. The committee investigating building trusts expects to recommend legislation intended to preclude a repetition of collusion, uniform price making and extortion such as it has exposed during hearings in New York.

This committee, it has been learned from official sources, favors jail and penitentiary sentences for individuals who prey upon public or private purses by choking free competition. It does not consider that fines impose sufficient punishment upon such men.

For violations of state anti-trust laws a minimum sentence of six months probably will be recommended in the proposed legislation. In this way, Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, contends that officers of concerns convicted of gouging the public suffer as much, at least, as those guilty of disorderly conduct.

Conspiracy to defraud the city, an occurrence which the investigation brought out had not been infrequent in the past, would be made a felony if the committee recommendations were adopted.

Other suggestions will be to compel every contractor dealing with the city to agree not to compare quotations with others; to forbid contractors from belonging to any association that hampers the offering of unrestricted bids and to compel them to submit a list of all sub-contractors engaged on a particular piece of construction work.

It is understood the committee also will request the legislature to prohibit agreements between labor and employers where the union fixes the price which employers must charge builders for labor.

Along with these recommendations for lowering the cost of construction, the committee is expected to ask the legislature to ease the financial phases of building by requiring banks and insurance companies to place a certain percentage of their resources into real estate mortgages.

The committee expects to conclude its long series of open hearings in June, but the housecleaning among building trades may go on much longer. Additional indictments are predicted by Mr. Untermyer.

Already more than 200 individuals and concerns have been fined or sentenced to imprisonment as a result of the inquiry. Sixteen master plumbers were sent to the workhouse after the committee finished with them and their organization. They were found guilty of restraint of trade. Seven other men were sentenced to penitentiary terms, among them the wealthy labor leader, Robert P. Brindell and John T. Hettrick, a lawyer who operated secret codes for various building groups.

Others who were heavily fined included 21 plumbers and plumbing concerns, 23 out stone contractors, 15 sand and gravel dealers, 13 building material men and 11 firms controlled by them. Twenty-three plumbers were given suspended sentences.

PERUVIAN GOVERNMENT PUBLISHES PAPER

LIMA, June 8.—The Peruvian government is now engaged in the publication of a daily newspaper, an unusual venture, in South America. This is the result of seizure by the government of the newspaper, La Prensa, in March last. The council of ministers issued a decree authorizing expropriation of the newspaper on the ground that it was the center of a conspiracy and that for the past two years it had been "a deliberate inciter of rebellion and revolt."

The attempt of the government to control the conduct of the La Prensa has been the cause of much comment among Peruvian newspapers and news-pape men. El Comercio, the dean of the Lima newspapers, has charged in an editorial that the government has committed a "most grave attack against liberty of thought and against private property."

There is a legal battle on to compel the government to surrender the newspaper to its former director, Luis F. Cisneros. Augusto Durand, owner of La Prensa, has been a political exile for more than 18 months and is now said to be in Bolivia. Senor Cisneros is conducting the legal fight to recover possession of the paper which is now administered by an editorial force and business management installed by government agents.

Cisneros has obtained a writ from the constitutional court ordering the prefect of police to restore the property to him but the prefect has avoided doing so by notifying the court that the paper is in the hands of the government. Cisneros then brought suit for a writ in the supreme court at Lima, demanding a return of the property, but this was denied. The court held that it could not yet interfere under the expropriation law enacted about 10 years ago.

Meantime the government has deposited the equivalent of about $35,000 to the credit of the former owner of the paper, this amount representing its value fixed by an inventory. The public is watching the contest and awaiting the next step with much interest.

JUNE IS MONTH FOR OUT-DOOR PARTIES

BY SISTER MARY

June is the month of picnics and class suppers and all sorts of delightful, out-of-doors informal party times. That you may always be ready even for the most impromptu picnic keep a picnic shelf in the pantry. Simple sandwiches and foods taste good in the open air so plan your shelf with the idea of eliminating fussing.

Here are some suggestions as to how to maintain a simple, easy and at the same time satisfying picnic standard.

Choose your supplies with family tastes in mind. Have a good assortment of sandwich fillings. Hard-boiled eggs, several kinds of sandwiches, cookies, fruit and coffee make a picnic that pleases everybody. Canned meats and fish can be used in a salad or as sandwich fillings.

A bottle of plain olives and one of stuffed olives always help out. Pimiento cheese, baked beans, peanut butter, olive butter and a bottle of salad dressing will be found useful.

Keep oiled paper, cups, plates, napkins, salt and pepper shakers in the lunch kit or basket.

Menus for Picnics

Potato salad, corned beef sandwiches, plain bread and butter sandwiches, coconut cookies, strawberries, coffee.

June evenings are apt to be cool, so hot coffee in the thermos bottle will be better than lemonade. There are always potatoes in the house and if they aren't cooked boil them with the skins on and peel them white warm. And there's always an onion. But if there isn't a cucumber use pickled cucumbers cut in the thin slices and add a hard-boiled egg or two.

My Own Recipes
Baked beans, lettuce sandwiches, stuffed olive sandwiches, cottage cheese and marmalade sandwiches, cranberry, hickorynut macaroons, tea.

With baked beans a salad is not necessary if the sandwiches are highly flavored and moist. Tea and oranges combine better than coffee and oranges.

Salmon salad, plain bread and butter sandwiches, potato chips, ginger snaps, bananas, coffee.

All these menus are simple and easy to prepare. Salad is, sometimes, a problem to pack, but a quart jar may be used or there are light enamel bowls that are just the thing for picnics and use in the refrigerator. They may be found in several sizes and have little weight.

Cheesecake
One-half teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups flour, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons hot water, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup cheesecake.

Mix baking powder and flour into a mixing bowl. Make a hole in the center and add remaining ingredients. Dissolve the soda in the hot water. Drop from spoon on a buttered and floured baking sheet and bake in a hot oven.

Hickorynut Macaroons
Three-fourth cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup hickory-nut meats, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat eggs well and beat in sugar.

Add flour, baking powder and salt sifted together. Add vanilla and mix well. Drop from spoon on buttered and floured baking sheet and bake in a quick oven.

THERE'S SOMETHING NEW AFTER ALL

Sometimes one gets the idea that "there is nothing new under the sun." Perhaps not—but there are ways of combining "things under the sun" that make something new.

As manufacturers of temperance beverages for many years, the proprietors of Chelmsford Spring believed they had heard of all the many ways in which Chelmsford Spring Ginger Ale and the other ten popular flavors could be served.

Not so. A unique contest aiming to obtain further recipes, where their delicious beverages are used, has recently been conducted. Three capital prizes of $35, $25 and $15, respectively were awarded and a case of selected beverages to other contestants. The interest was unusual.

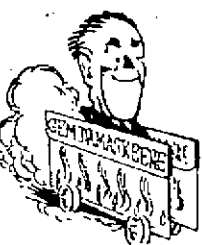

Well over a hundred different recipes were submitted. These combinations have been tried. Many have proven truly delicious—and the company has compiled a little folder containing prize recipes for free distribution to the readers of The Lowell Sun. You can have a copy by addressing "The Ginger Ale People," Chelmsford, Mass.

MOLLY VARNUM RECEPTION
A novel form of remembrance for Molly Varnum was held yesterday afternoon at the Spalding house, when a "reception to Molly Varnum" was given by the organization which bears her name, the Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R. Gathered in the quaint and be-furred costume of the days in which the famous American woman lived, Miss Elizabeth Coburn received informally as Molly Varnum. A beautiful and imposing birthday cake was surrounded by pink candles standing in glass candlesticks. The new regent of the chapter, Mrs. Nathan Pulsifer, poured, while the hostesses were: Miss Florence Young, Mrs. C. A. Brown, Mrs. E. T. Shaw, Mrs. B. E. Corlew, Mrs. G. B. Hicknell, Mrs. D. S. Woodworth of Fitchburg and Mrs. C. E. Howe. Those who served were: Helen Webster, Nella Horner and Phyllis Brown.

High School Orchestra Attains Prestige As Very Successful Musical Organization

LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA AND ITS DIRECTOR, FRED O. BLUNT

One of the most successful and talented organizations of the student body of the Lowell high school is the school orchestra which under the direction of Fred O. Blunt, director of music in the public schools, has made rapid strides in its work until this year it is to have the honor of accompanying the class of 1921 in the musical numbers of its graduation exercises a few weeks hence.

This is the first time in the history of the school, it is believed, that the music for the exercises will be furnished by an orchestra made up of students.

The orchestra was first started seven years ago when the idea of grouping the instrumental talent of the students into a single organization was conceived and Mr. Blunt agreed to undertake the direction of the work. Although its personnel has changed each year, the orchestra has been dominated by one motive—to serve the school whenever possible and to the best of its ability. Never has it refused to come to the front when requested and now it is a customary and expected part of all of the school's patriotic exercises, entertainments and debates.

To be able to respond to the various calls made upon it the orchestra has had to practice faithfully and regularly, and week in and week out it meets with Mr. Blunt in the school hall for a two-hour rehearsal. These weekly rehearsals have resulted in a most proficient organization and one whose performance would do credit to a much older group of players.

The personnel of the orchestra is as follows: Pianist, Karl Marshall; violinists, Miss Margaret Goggin, Miss Dorothy Farley, Miss Margaret Kelley, Saul Stein, Thomas McNiff and Chas. Flood; cornetists, Donald Court and Wilbur Roberts; trombonist, Joseph L'Heureux; saxophonist, Paul Irish, and drums, Samuel Dickson.

possibly come in contact. And I want to say here and now that I cannot give a moment's serious consideration to the possibility of war with Great Britain.

Such a conflict, he declared, would, in his opinion, be the end of civilization.

Talk of Disarmament
"I am well aware," he continued, "that a great many good people in this country, indeed in the world, believe that the time has come when the world should undertake a general disarmament. I am entirely in sympathy with every wise and sane endeavor to bring about the adoption of a world movement with that result in view. But we must remember that the passions of war and the disturbances to society, as well as to the individual, cannot be overcome or forgotten in a day. Only time and a great deal of time will bring people and nations back to a normal condition."

The past is history, the future, mystery. It would be folly to let our hopes for the future blind our eyes to the facts of the past. History demonstrates that this world, since its very creation, has revolved in a cycle in which peace ends in war just as war, in turn, ends in peace. I believe that the world is gradually returning to a state of mind where, with a vivid recollection of the horrors of the past war, it can take definite action in bringing about a reduction in armament. Under present conditions, however, it would be the height of folly for the United States to be the first to disarm.

Must Act Simultaneously
"Worldwide disarmament must come as the result of an international agreement and must be done simultaneously. Prudence would not permit our disarming while others hold weapons in their hands."

DEATH BULLETS

Medical Examiner Testifies at Sacco-Vanzetti Murder Trial

Identifies Bullets Found in Body of Alessandro Berardelli

DEDHAM, June 8.—The bullets found in the body of Alessandro Berardelli were identified today by Medical Examiner George B. Magrath of Boston and put in evidence at the trial of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, charged with the murder of Berardelli and Frederick A. Parmenter in South Braintree last year.

Dr. Magrath, who performed autopsies on the bodies of Berardelli and Parmenter, described the bullets as steel jacketed and of .32 calibre. He pointed out with the aid of Assistant District Attorney Harold P. Williams the direction which they took in Berardelli's body at the time of the shooting.

A half dozen young women from a class in economics and civil government at Wellesley college, were spectators at the proceedings today.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to Choose if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my offices? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of Two Kinds of Dentistry. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. This is Dentistry as I Do Not Do It.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see restfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of Dentistry as I Do Practice It.

SOMEBODY STOLE MAX'S HORSE AND PONY

Max Cohen of Braintree has reported to the police here the loss of a bay horse and pony. He requests that anyone finding these animals, either alone, or in company with a group who have helped themselves to sundry articles hereabouts, from limousines to straw hats, notify him by telephone, number 4755. If the animals prove to have been stolen rather than strayed, the police would also be pleased to be informed.

CIRCUS HORSES IN PINK OF CONDITION

Agent Richardson of the Lowell Humane society visited the circus grounds at 7 a. m. today, and made a thorough examination of the horses. He reports that the animals all appeared in excellent condition. He failed to discover any galled spots in any case, although carefully going over nearly every horse in the outfit. In some circuses of smaller size in the past, there have been found horses not properly cared for and unsuited to the work they were required to do. However, the Sells-Floto organization states the agent has been given a 100 per cent clean bill.

HARD-BOILED MAKES SOFT GETAWAY

A hard-boiled driver indeed has been reported at headquarters by the Humane society officials. This party was driving a lame horse on Market st. yesterday, when Assistant Agent Duncan of the organization stopped him. For his pains the Humane society man received a swat in the face from the driver's whip. The horse was the next recipient of a lashing, and despite his lameness was induced to depart the vicinity at high speed. The police are looking for the individual so impartial as to whom he wallows with his whip.

Fighting Disease Germs

There is a popular idea that most sickness is caused by a germ of the disease finding entrance to our bodies through the food we eat, the water or milk we drink or the air we breathe. This is true as far as it goes, but it is also true that disease germs are entering our bodies every day without causing disease.

The reason for this is that there are forces within the body that are constantly fighting these disease germs and it is only when this defense is weakened that the germs get the upper hand and we become ill. One of the most powerful of these forces that work for health is rich, red blood. Good, healthy blood increases the resistance of the body to the diseases that are always threatening it. It is only when this resistance is weakened that the germs get the upper hand and we become ill. One of the most powerful of these forces that work for health is rich, red blood. Good, healthy blood increases the resistance of the body to the diseases that are always threatening it.

FOR RECOGNITION OF MEXICAN

Hughes Draws up New Treaty Calling for Safeguards for U. S. Property

Signing of Pact Would Automatically Accomplish Recognition

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The United States has proposed a treaty of amity and commerce with Mexico. It was announced yesterday at the state department, in which Mexico will agree to safeguard the rights of property in that country held by American citizens which was attached before the constitution of 1917 was promulgated. The signing of the treaty automatically would accomplish recognition of the Mexican government.

Discussed by Cabinet

Formal announcement of the administration's policy toward Mexico was made after the subject had been discussed at the regular cabinet meeting. President Harding and his advisers had before them a communication from President Obregon relating to the proposed treaty, which was presented to the Mexican president by George T. Sumner, the American charge at Mexico City, on May 27.

The text of Obregon's reply has been withheld and administration officers decline to discuss it or to make any comment as to the relation to it of the announcement of policy made public by Secretary Hughes. It is understood, however, that Obregon referred to the negotiations which are proceeding with Mr. Sumner, and indicated a willingness to carry them forward. It is known that he has summoned to the capital Ministers Calles and De La Huerta, who are reported to have counseled against the signing of such a treaty at a Mexican cabinet conference held after it had become known in Mexico City that a treaty of this character would be proposed by the United States.

Secretary Hughes' announcement contained no reference to the attitude assumed by President Obregon, but it did say that if Mexico did not contemplate a conciliatory policy with regard to property the American government could "conceive of no possible objection to the treaty."

It was stated that the proposed treaty contained "the conventional stipulations as to commerce and reciprocal rights in both countries; that it provided for the settlement of claims for loss of life and property, and also a provision for a 'just settlement of boundary matters.'"

The department's statement said that the fundamental question which faced the United States in considering its relations with Mexico was the safeguarding of property rights against confiscation. It was emphasized that this question should not be confused with any matter of personalities or the recognition of any particular administration, and the declaration was made that whenever Mexico was ready to give assurances that she would perform her fundamental obligations in the protection both of persons and of rights of property, "valuable" acquisitions there would be "no obstacle to the most advantageous relations between the two peoples."

OLD AGE, HIS MARK!

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discourses of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows. We can detect the first traces of disease by signs just as plain.

When a woman suffers from backache, nervous depression, nagging, downy pains and those ailments peculiar to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine. What other medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles—Adv.

LABOR TROUBLES AND WAGE REDUCTIONS

(Special to The Sun)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 8.—That labor troubles arising out of wage reductions have reached their peak, and are now on the down grade, is the opinion of Edward Fisher of Westford, chairman of the state board of conciliation and arbitration.

Discussing the matter today, Chairman Fisher said his recent contacts with labor leaders have indicated that, unless employers adopt an unreasonable policy with respect to wage reductions, there is not likely to be any further serious labor disturbance in the near future.

"We have found labor leaders generally," he said, "are hard to admit that in a time of declining prices of commodities it is necessary for the laborer to accept a lower wage. We are now passing through such a time, and although there are a number of strikes now in progress, scattered all over the commonwealth, it cannot be said that the number is greater than is ordinarily the case. The most serious disturbance just at present is that in the building trade in Springfield, and agents of the board are endeavoring to bring about a settlement of that controversy."

"In several recent cases, this board has fixed twelve and a half per cent as the maximum reduction in wages that is at present justifiable. That figure, it is interesting to note, has been approved by the railroad labor board in its recent decision reducing the wages of railroad employees. That figure also, has been generally accepted by employers in this state, and unless employers attempt to exceed it, in their desire to reduce expenses too speedily, there is no indication that they will find themselves involved in serious disputes with their employees."

"There are some who appear to believe that reductions in wages should keep step with reductions in the cost of living, but obviously that is impossible, and the labor men contend, in addition, that even if it were possible it would be unfair."

"It should be borne in mind that reductions in wages have a considerable effect upon the cost of living. Each reduction in wages means a decrease in the cost of living; sometimes that decrease is felt immediately, and sometimes its effect is not apparent for months, this being regulated by the nature of the industry. In cases where wage reductions are, or should be, immediately reflected in living costs, it would necessitate constant changes in the wage scale if any attempt were made to keep it parallel with the cost of living.

"But the labor leaders point out that when, during the war, the cost of living jumped by leaps and bounds, there were many industries in which wages did not increase at an equal pace, and they insist that in those industries, at least, reductions should also be made more slowly. There appears to be much force in this argument, but the obvious difficulty will be in determining to which industries this claim should be applied.

"It is the hope and belief of this board that both employers and employees, speaking generally, will adopt a reasonable view of the wage question, and if that proves the case, there appears no reason to expect any further increase in the number of persons in this state unemployed at the present time."

Addresses to Our Graduates by Two Well Known Educators

The Sun today presents to the young men and young women of Lowell, who are being graduated from high schools and colleges, two of their most serious considerations. The address to girls is written by Luette Bentley, a pioneer woman educator, who for 40 years has been a distinguished member of the faculty of Lake Erie college atainesville, O., a famous institution for girls. The address to young men is written by Harry T. Judson, president of Chicago university, one of America's greatest educational institutions.

By HARRY T. JUDSON
President Chicago University
During June many thousands of young men throughout the country are receiving diplomas from schools and colleges.

The occasion is properly known as "commencement."
It must not be assumed, however, that when a student leaves his school or college he is beginning life. He is, in fact, simply passing from work of one kind to another for which his training ought to make him proficient. School or college training is a great good fortune. It is only the minority who are able to avail themselves of it. These few, therefore, have a rare privilege which they ought to value highly.

Life is strenuous. It has trials and difficulties. But even so, it should be thoroughly happy. One properly educated has his understanding opened to many sources of true delight.

Value of Education
Education does not consist primarily in what one knows. The young graduate does not know very much. But if he has learned what he can do well, and how he can do it, he is well educated.

What society needs in you, young man, is the power for effective work. The graduate should do more things, and do them better because of his school life; otherwise his schooling is wasted.

The graduate should remember that he is in debt to society for his education. Whether he has paid tuition fees or not makes little difference. Such fees do not usually amount to more than one-third of the cost of schooling. The rest is given to him by the generosity of the state or of individuals.

The graduate, therefore, should repay the community for the special privilege of education afforded him, by being a good and useful citizen.

By LUETTE BENTLEY
Pioneer Woman Educator
You young women who are being graduated from our high schools and colleges this month are leaving the school doors with a broader and more tender appreciation of life. That is your particular gift.

There is no human measure of the value of your trained personality in its ministry in the home, the school, the office—in any of your opportunities.

The greater numbers of you each year seeking for higher education are inspiring proof of your growing thoughtfulness. You have not understood, perhaps, but you have felt the need of special training for a special part in life. There was definite purpose in that indefinite urge. For through it you have yourself in hand. Your resources are marshaled, ready to respond at their best to every need.

No Pity For Mistakes
Life has no pity for mistakes resulting from haphazard choices. But you need make no haphazard selections.

You have always had your ability, which in itself is not so important. Now you have the added sensibility, flexibility and adaptability which makes your ability usable.

An unselfish understanding of the relations of life is of unmeasured value to you in developing your opportunities. You need appreciation of and a willingness to live according to the thought expressed in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

You need to remember, as you go your new way, that the one who helps a little child in the first two years of its life has done more for humanity than can be done during any other period.

Carpenters Cut Their Own Wages

NEWTON, June 8.—The union carpenters comprising the district council of Newton, Waltham, Natick, Needham and Concord have just completed a referendum vote, the result of which is to reduce the wages in the district to 90 cents an hour. An agreement with the master builders goes into effect immediately and will remain effective to April, 1922. The vote was taken in the hope that it would stimulate and stabilize the building industry of the district, and meets with the approval of the builders' association, which is working harmoniously with the journeymen's organization. It is hoped to eliminate all causes of friction by conference and mutual concessions.

Alvin T. Hert Drops Dead

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., and republican national committeeman from that state, died suddenly yesterday at the New Willard hotel here. Mr. Hert, who was 56 years of age, had come here to attend the meeting of the republican national committee today. Death was said to have been due to apoplexy. Only recently he had declined to consider appointment by President Harding as ambassador to a foreign country, or as the president's representative on the government reorganization commission. He had also been prominently mentioned after the election as a cabinet possibility, and later as the next republican national committee chairman, but he declined that he could not accept the latter if it were tendered to him.

She had become lost and slept throughout the night, she stated when found.

Wall Paper

IT'S COMING INTO ITS OWN AGAIN

There has been an enthusiastic revival of scenic wall papers.

Those beautiful designs from the manufacturers across the Atlantic are slowly but surely impressing themselves on the public mind.

And in the latest issues of the exclusive magazines of the home that have appeared within the past few weeks, several articles with these beautiful papers as their leading theme.

Among the latest scenic effects is a very distinctive design by Strahan. The pattern repeats in the length of each strip, as do ordinary scenic, but four strips, each 28 inches wide, are required to show the whole patterns in its entire width.

We have this pattern mounted for your inspection. Ask to see Strahan's scenic.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

By Theatre's Own Press Agents
MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
Final performances of "Deception," the big feature which comes to Lowell directly from a successful run in the Colonial theatre, Boston, will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening. Tomorrow there will be an entire change of program.

The features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "Mother of Mine," a big Thomas H. Ince human interest story, and "Seven Years' Bad Luck," a Max Linder comedy filled with laughs. "Mother of Mine" is an exceptionally appealing story.

The plot of the play centers around the determination of Robert Sheldon (Lloyd Hughes), who, fired with ambition, leaves his native village for the experience of a great metropolis. His only friend is a letter written by his mother to a diabolical wizard of finance who, in reality, is the father of the boy, having cruelly deserted him at his infancy on the drunken supposition that his wife's infidelity had made him the son of another.

Despising the boy, gloating with fiendish glee over what he believes the crossing of the clans and "the day" for hideous revenge upon the tainted soul of this youth, he plays the game with crafty cunning, subtly employing him in what is believed by the boy to be a legitimate firm of financial representatives, but which, it is seen ascertained, is an elite band of operatives who play upon the innocence, and the pocketbooks, of prospective investors.

From this point on the plot becomes increasingly absorbing and the denouement is most surprising.

"Seven Years' Bad Luck" runs the gamut of things which go to make fun. There are any number of exterior and interior settings of a high grade through which the story weaves its way. In some respects it is a lesson to the over-superstitious. The fact that seven years of ill fortune is heralded by the breaking of a mirror, is but a lesson in a clever manner. As the picture progresses it will be seen that all sorts of agencies were pressed into service to make the picture pleasing to the eye as well as the funny-bone. Patriotic homes, country estates, railroad trains and even a zoo—all these and more too as the film flickers by.

In the leading role, Max Linder (as himself) gives the greatest comedy portrayal of his career. The International News and a short comedy round out the bill.

H. P. KEITH'S THEATRE

For the farewell week of vaudeville at the H. P. Keith theatre, Craig Campbell, distinguished young American tenor, is appearing at each performance in a varied program, ranging from ballads to grand opera. He is unquestionably one of the best male singers heard here in vaudeville. The remainder of the bill is of rather unusual interest. Archer & Belford in "The New Janitor" have a screamingly funny skit, and Edith Kane and Jay Harmon chatter along and sing uproariously. A varied and most interesting dancing act is presented by Frederick Easter and Beatrice Squire, while Cook and Oatman present a new singing turn. Others on the bill are Fivick & Jenny, roller skaters, and Beatrice Doane, singer.

RIALTO THEATRE

For the production of Custer's last fight, one of the stirring episodes of the American west, the Rialto theatre, under the management of Marshall Nellian, has produced a picture of the most spectacular nature. "The Last Stand of Red Cloud," the producer used a technical staff of 50. This is one of the largest organizations of this kind ever employed on one film. The story deals with the Indian uprising following the Civil war and treats the gallant fight of an outpost from the American army for his fair name. He was dismissed from the service for a crime which he did not commit, and it was only after he had captured the culprit that he was finally rewarded. The program also carries a comedy and the continuation of "The Son of Tarzan."

NEW LAKEVIEW PARK

Tonight is souvenir night at New Lakeview park, and those who enter the great dance hall, won't come away empty handed. Thousands of people are enjoying the many attractions of the popular resort. All attendance records have been broken. The management aids to provide for absolute comfort and real quality of entertainment for patrons, and to this end, is sparing no expense. As the "first" of the season, the Mammis brothers, wire wizards, are making a decided hit, afternoon and evening.

THE STRAND

Hailed as a triumph of photodramatic art, "The Devil," introducing that polished actor, Mr. George Arliss to the screen, continued to interest and entertain large audiences at all performances daily at The Strand. Ordinarily a motion picture remains but three days, but because of the extraordinary features and wonderful production, "The Devil" will be held for the entire week. It was one of the sensations of the speaking stage. It had its first presentation in Budapest in 1917, and then in Vienna. The following season it invaded the theatres of every capital in Europe and created a furore wherever staged. In America it had two productions, one starring Mr. Arliss and the other Edwin Stevens. Mr. Arliss has repeatedly refused to appear before the motion picture camera, but was finally persuaded to perpetuate his marvelous portrayal of "The Devil," and because of the growing success that marked his first screen efforts, it is a foregone conclusion that he will appear on the silent stage again.

The program that is given with the presentation of "The Devil," is a novelty of original design and conception by Resident Manager Samuel Torgan, and in it appears Charles Barton and Miss Mildred Beaudreau. The latter is seen in "The Dance of Death," while Mr. Barton, in "The Lowell Play," portrays the character of "Sister" Gladys. Gladys "Doll" Up' will be shown for the last time today, and beginning tomorrow Corinne Griffiths will be seen in "It Isn't Being Done This Season."

"WAY DOWN EAST"

The new announcement that the big Griffith film production of the delightful New England play, "Way Down East," is to be seen at the B. F. Keith theatre, was held last evening as a great attraction, beginning Monday afternoon, June 13, has already awakened a great amount of interest among the audience. The production of this city, which has been running at the Tremont Temple, Boston, all season, which ended only a few weeks ago with a record-breaking run to its credit of thirty weeks. It will be given at the B. F. Keith theatre with the same large symphony orchestra and a carload of elaborate stage effects, together with special operators, large working crew of stage hands and the same large special simple picture machine.

Many Lowell people journeyed to Boston to see the production when it was running there. Of late inquiries have been coming in as to when they were going to bring the much talked-of production to this city. The management of the Keith theatre has been straining every point to secure it for its patrons, offering big inducements until at the last moment it has succeeded in closing contracts for the above dates.

The advance sale for "Way Down East" will start at the B. F. Keith theatre on Thursday, May 12, at 5 a. m. and it is safe to say the seats will be in big demand.

HARBERS' UNION

Routine business was transacted and Herbert Jordan was elected vice president at a meeting of the Harbers' union, which was held last evening with President John B. Curtin in the chair. Other routine meetings were held by the Woolen Weavers' union and the Blacksmiths' union.

THE HEART OF THE BIG GAME COUNTRY

The glories of the Pine Tree state, as "The Sportsman's Paradise," were rehearsed last evening before the members of the St. Anne's church Men's club by E. S. Jones, of Boston, official photographer for the B. & M. The address was illustrated by slides made from photographs taken by the lecturer himself. The affair marked the closing of a winter season which is said to have eclipsed all former years from every standpoint of success. So pronounced was the interest, in the talk given by Mr. Jones, that arrangements were made for a return lecture to be held here in October. Refreshments were served at the close of the lecture, with Hugh Thomas and Reuben White in charge. President E. S. Teeson of the club acted as chairman of the gathering.

WILL REMOVE TREE IN SOUTH COMMON

The big tree in left field on the South common baseball playing area will be removed at once in order to increase the size of the playstead and avoid all danger of accident. The park commission came to this decision last evening after viewing the Twilight league game and seeing how the tree interfered with playing. In the winter two new trees will be set in away from the playing field and other trees on the common will be replaced with new growth. The left field area will be roped off after the tree is removed so that the fielder will not be hindered by spectators.

The annual production of sea island cotton has been reduced by the boll weevil from 92,000 bales to less than 7000 bales in two years.

THE DOCTORS' CONVENTION

Not only physicians of the city, but the Lowell public generally, will feel a deep interest in what is said and done at the sessions of the 122nd annual convention of the American Medical Association in Boston this week. The subjects to be considered by the medical men are unusually comprehensive and over 600 experts in different departments of medicine and surgery are scheduled to speak.

Probably but few of us appreciate as we should what medical science has done for us in the last three or four decades. Men and women now middle-aged can recall the time when epidemics of typhoid fever were of frequent occurrence in Lowell and other cities of the Merrimack valley. We pumped the unfiltered water of the river into our street mains, and people drank it, and hundreds died as a consequence. Medical science took up the problem and studied it. The typhoid germ was isolated. It was found that it reached the human system usually through milk or water. Even after this discovery was made, it was with great difficulty that people could be convinced of the necessity of providing a pure water supply. Today typhoid cases in this city are few and sporadic, and practical immunity from the disease may be secured by inoculation.

Not so very far back in the past the plague of yellow fever frequently spread over the southern part of the country. Year after year appeals were made for help for the people of the stricken sections in the churches of Lowell and other parts of New England. Today the dread of yellow fever has been banished. Medical science set out to find the cause of the disease. It found it in the mosquito that carries the germ, but the quest was not ended until three lives had been willingly given as sacrifices in the search. Malaria in like way has been curbed as a foe of the race.

A concrete example of what medical science has accomplished for the race is found in the Panama canal. It was not because the French lacked brains and capital that they failed in their endeavor to build it and left the isthmus dotted with rusting and worthless machinery that had cost the equivalent of a king's ransom. It was that they lacked the means of controlling the deadly disease of the tropics. To the results achieved by investigators of the causes of disease we owe perhaps more than to any other one factor the present existence of the canal.

The situation as regards the preservation of good health today has been well summed up in the following words: "Medicine is preventable; that is, most diseases are preventable; but the effectiveness of prevention lies in its early application—consult your doctor before it is too late; make him in its early application—consult your regular man."

It is not improbable that in the future the field of the medical man will be most largely in advising people how to avoid sickness. We may come to the day when we shall adopt the Chinese system of paying our physicians so long as they keep us well and shutting off their remuneration when we are sick.

THE FACT THAT MAYOR WHITE HAS JUST

signed a contract involving an expenditure of $100,000 to $150,000 for the architect's fees alone. The cost of the building is, of course, not fixed as yet, although roughly estimated at from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The architect who handles that job can reap for life what he sows. He has been finished—unless he has to share his earnings with those who gave him the position. When a special commission is put in charge of a building enterprise of this kind, it should be free to select the architect because otherwise it cannot control the expense. Referring to the cost the telegraph says:

"They (the buildings) should be built for about $1,500,000, but there would be no limit to the cost if contracts for their building were awarded in the reckless manner in which the contract for the plans and the specifications were awarded."

Apparently Lowell is not the only city that has to battle against extravagance in building operations. Lawrence, like Lowell, still plods along under the entanglements of the commission charter.

NEWS FROM IRELAND

From the frequent despatches from Ireland announcing that policemen or soldiers have been killed in ambush, it would appear that the police are the victims of unprovoked attack and that the Irish who assail them are wicked lot. But the despatches do not tell of the nightly raids and shootings by the Black and Tans and other auxiliary forces who, after the curfew hour, sallied forth in their armored cars raiding homes and over the hands, except in Ulster, in search of young men in sympathy with the republic. As over eighty per cent. of the people are supporting the republic, the government forces do not wait to look for evidence. Wherever they take a young man in bed at night they take him, provided he is not a unionist. For this reason a vast number of the men, both young and old, cannot sleep in their own homes or in a bed anywhere without risk of being pounced upon in the dead of night by the crown forces and either shot outside their doors or carried off to an internment camp. In such cases the men are taken away and their relatives get no news whatever as to their whereabouts. Amidst this received in this country show that in many such cases the women are outraged by the raiders, sometimes being taken off in lorries for a few hours and then returned. This treatment and the continual strain of terrible suspense has driven the people to desperation so that wherever possible they seek vengeance on the representatives of the government, but nearly always in daylight. As nearly all the arms they use are taken from the police and the soldiers, their attacks are necessarily limited; but the republic is functioning and the only danger is, that as a result of curtailment in the area under crops this year, there may be a food shortage next winter. But the people are determined to fight on until their demands are conceded.

It seems a somewhat thin excuse for the expenditure of the city's money that a new automobile is needed for the official who has lately taken over a part of the administrative work of the water and street departments. What has become of the new car which was purchased for one of the disabled commissioners only a short time ago?

Wannanahet may have been a very fine old chap, even if he did daub yellow ochre on his cheeks and wear rooster's feathers in his hair, but there is not more recent resident of Lowell whose name might be honored in the naming of Pawtucketville's new park?

As every place of fruit falls from the office plum tree into waiting hands, half a score of disappointed waiters under the branches turn away with four faces and a grim determination to do something to somebody for what has happened.

The park commissioners might remember that only the year can replace a tree destroyed and that the public, as well as the baseball fans, have a proprietary interest in all of the trees on the common.

Intimating that Boston is older than in days of yore, the Boston Globe observes: "How the marching of the Ancients has improved! Let them march to Lowell if they wish to be restored to their ancient form."

We are to have new laws governing the use of glaring headlights, and it is comforting to know that they cannot be less effective than those they supersede.

Perhaps the municipal council could not have done otherwise, but its granting of a license to "rent and lease" firearms does not seem exactly calculated to promote the public safety.

Will someone supply a new butt for community jokes now that there is a possibility that we may lose First street?

When politicians fall out, the public learns something about what an unsavory mess some kinds of politics are.

Massachusetts' sympathy goes out to stricken Pueblo and something more substantial than sympathy will follow if it is needed.

"Really, my dear, I don't see how you can tolerate such impertinent familiarity from a servant," Miss Dubbs observed when the girl had left the room. "O, Mary doesn't mean anything," Mrs. Subbs replied with a condescending smile. "That is merely the way of a privileged old family retainer. You'll scarcely credit it, but that girl has been with us for a full seven weeks."—New York Sun.

Future All Planned

"The work has delivered a 10-pound boy at my house," said a caller at the office of the Chigerville Clarion. "I want you to put a piece about it in your paper." "All right," said the editor. "I'll write a snappy headline for the announcement and call him a future president of the United States." "You needn't bother about that. His mother and her relatives have already decided that he's going to be a motion picture star, because he has a dimple in his chin."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Nests

Red roses twine about my cottage doorway. White gulls and clouds drift over the blue sea. But something out beyond the rustling poplars is calling me. A nest is kind and soothing for a season. An evening's rest, a calmly-sheltered noon. But somewhere blooms a more enchanting springtime. A razor June.

The gritty hills and plains are vast and tender. The hawks dart about my cactus bed. A blue mirage smiles in the yellow distance. Where the tall cranes have fled. The clinging cedars, dwarfed and gray above me. Their age-long vigils keep. Gray peaks grow pink and lilac in the sunset. The dusty rock-wrens cheep.

The gracious stillness holds me in its bosom. The vast hills meet the sky. A sandy road leads far across the wind drifts by. I take the road and gladly follow, follow. The plains fade gray. A crowd tramps far below my city windows. The whistles Bray.

Some time, I know, the city walls will be glad me. Its streets confound. And I shall seek the purple, windy waters. Or hills or pine. For always, till the last red sunset calls me. I hope to see Some little stretch of unfamiliar meadow. Some strange green tree. A nest is kind and soothing for a season. A sheltered nook beyond the shifting sands. But somewhere clouds sweep on, and somewhere beckon. The sea's white hands.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

"In case of an alarm of fire, the Watchman shall first spring his rattle, sufficiently to give an alarm, and then cry Fire distinctly, and, in an audible voice, say where the fire is."

"They shall render immediate assistance to any person who shall cry for help."

The Watchmen shall challenge all persons they suspect of having any evil intentions, and unless their suspicions shall be removed, shall take him, her, or them to the Watch House; and no person so committed shall be discharged therefrom unless by order of the Captain of the Watch, or in due course of law."

Well, guess what aged volume the above was taken from. Does it describe the guardians of the law in Merrie England, or America in the days of the Puritan fathers? If you think either of these cases supply a correct solution. For the above paragraphs are culled from the "Rules and Regulations for the Watch," of Lowell, Mass., and are dated Feb. 19, 1850, and signed by "Thos. Ordway, city clerk."

These regulations form the second sheet of a commission as "patrol watchmen" given to Warren Seaver by "The Mayor and Aldermen" of Lowell on the date stated above. The commission reads in full: "City of Lowell. His testifies that Warren Seaver has been appointed by the Mayor and Aldermen, a member of the Patrol Watch of the city of Lowell. He is bound to perform the duties of a Watchman, and to conform to the Rules and Regulations adopted by the Mayor and Aldermen for the government of the Watch, and the preservation of the peace and order of the city. Given at Lowell, this 19th day of February, A. D. 1850. By order of the Mayor and Aldermen, Thomas Ordway, city clerk."

Printed on blue parchment, the document is now the possession of Chas. W. Pearl of 212 Ambler street, Lawrence, Mass. Mr. Pearl is the grandson of Warren Seaver, who now sleeps in Eden cemetery. Seaver and only served his country in time of peace, but also in time of war, having received the commission of captain during hostilities in the Mexican war of 1847-48. It was after his discharge from the military service that he was made a member of what is now Lowell's police force, but which then was "the patrol watch," an organization consisting of "one captain and four or more watchmen."

POPULAR OLD VET IS STILL IN LINE

After 20 Years of Suffering Chas. Metcalf is Now Like Old Self

Chas. L. Metcalf, widely known retired farmer, living on Main highway, Eastonville, Mass., suburb of Brockton, relates a remarkable experience with Tanlac. Mr. Metcalf is a veteran of the Civil war, and is not only highly esteemed around Brockton, but also has a large following of friends and acquaintances in Toggus, Me., where he was born and reared. Here is what he says:

"After 20 years of suffering from indigestion and stomach trouble, I'm enjoying the best of health and feeling like a new man, and I want to tell how Tanlac has put me back in line again. Yes, sir, I was just about ready to 'give up the ghost' when I got Tanlac, for I had little hope of ever being any better. My appetite was so poor I never wanted to eat, and the little I did force down caused a burning sensation like red-hot coals in my stomach. The pains around my heart nearly drove me frantic, and I had to gasp for breath until I thought I was simply going to smother. I was losing in weight, and was becoming very nervous, irritable and dispirited. I spent a small fortune in an endeavor to find something that would reach my case, but nothing helped me a bit until I finally got Tanlac."

"Well, sir, Tanlac has just run rough-shod over all my troubles, and I couldn't ask to be in better health than I am now. The fact that I can sit down to the table and eat as much of anything as I want and get up feeling satisfied and happy is in itself worth a fortune to me. I never have an ache or pain, sleep like a log at night, and feel just as fine as I ever did. Tanlac is simply the best medicine I have ever come across during the 76 years of my life."

Tanlac is sold in Lowell by Green's Drug store, under the personal supervision of a special Tanlac representative, by Wright Jew Co., Billerica, Mass., by Snow's Pharmacy, Concord, Mass., and by the leading druggist in every town.—Adv.

DISCUSSED STREET RAILWAY SITUATION

At a meeting of the board of selectmen for the town of Billerica, held Monday evening, the street railway situation was discussed, but no action was taken. It will be remembered that next Sunday has been set by the trustees of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. as the date for the discontinuation of the street car operations between Billerica Centre and Woburn unless jitney operations on that line cease.

John F. Lovell, manager of the Woburn-Reading auto bus line, was present at the selectmen's meeting and he stated that his company is ready to extend operations if street car service is discontinued. He said his company is ready to furnish transportation from Woburn to Billerica for 30 cents, the present cash rate on the cars being 50 cents.

Vocational School Baseball Team is Nearing Close of Very Successful Season

Despite obvious handicaps under which they have labored, the members of the Lowell Vocational school baseball team have had a most successful season, defeating some of the best amateur outfits in this section of the state and hanging up a record of which the school may be proud.

Especially notable is the record of this nine inasmuch as this is the first year that the Vocational school has had a really organized team with a professional coach. The team has suffered only two defeats in six games played. The season's record to date is as follows:

Vocational school 21, Chelmsford 19.
Vocational school 11, Mitchell Boys' school 1.
Vocational school 4, Westford 9.
Vocational school 20, Continuation school 1.
Vocational school 3, Wilmington 5.

Vocational school 11, Westford 1.

From this it will be seen that the Vocational school has administered at least one defeat to every team it has met with the exception of Wilmington, a side made up of much older players. However, the two teams are to meet again tomorrow afternoon on the fourth common and the local outfit hopes to even matters.

Although defeated in its first game with Westford, the nine came back strong yesterday and gave the suburban aggregation an 11 to 1 trouncing on the South common. It is probable that a "rubber" game will be played with the Westford team before the end of the season.

Next Wednesday afternoon the team will journey to Chelmsford where it will play the strong nine of that town. When it is considered that the hours at the Vocational school are much longer than in the other schools of the city and that it is often very difficult for the boys to get away at all in the afternoon, the success of the baseball team is worthy of more than passing recognition. The lack of proper grounds for practice in the vicinity of the school is another handicap with which the team has had to contend.

The team has been coached and directed by John H. Gillick of the school faculty, and much of its success may be traced directly to his untiring efforts. The boys themselves have practiced faithfully and regularly, despite their handicaps. Principal Thomas F. Fisher has also assisted materially in the success of the team. The members of the team are as follows: Nadeau, ss; Martel, p; O'Donnell, captain and c; Kelly, 3b; Gallagher, 1b; McInnis, 2b; Gibbons, utility; Hunt, cf; Ouellette, rf; Allen, lf; Austin, utility; Fullerton, p.

GROH'S SALARY

BY NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE
CINCINNATI, June 8.—Cost of being the champion holdout of the big league baseball this season has proven costly.

HEINIE GROH

to Heinie Groh, the Reds' star third baseman.

Up to the time he signed his contract, June 2, he had lost just $393.50, and his salary, which is to be at the rate of $10,000 per year, does not start until he is reinstated by Judge Landis.

Groh's contract calls for $175.62 per month. On this basis his $10,000 salary has been dwindling at the rate of $494.62 per week or $57.50 per day. Groh signed his contract in order to stop this loss of money to himself and to get something out of the wreckage of his holdout.

FITZ WON TITLE FROM CORBETT IN 1897

The heavyweight championship slipped out of the grasp of an American for the first time on St. Patrick's day, 1897, when Robert Fitzsimmons, a lanky Australian, pounded James J. Corbett into submission in the 14th round.

This occasion was the first of its kind at which pictures were taken. Both fighters enjoyed the kinesthetic rights, as the side money from the movies was denominated at that time.

It was also the beginning of woman's entry into the role of spectator at ring contests. The fight was held at Carson City, Nev., and all of the newspapers made much over the presence of 29 women among the 4000 seat-holders. One of these women was Mrs. Fitzsimmons, who sat just behind her husband's seconds and encouraged him on to victory.

The Australian weighed only 167 pounds while Corbett entered the ring at 183. The champion flourished the foreigner in the sixth round, but lacked the finishing punch.

In the final round, Fitzsimmons swung his left arm furiously and planted his right glove over Corbett's heart. The champion staggered from the fierce blow and Fitzsimmons tore into him with flashing rights and lefts to the stomach that brought the battle to a close.

A large crowd of fans who favored the Australian jumped into the ring and surrounded him, seeking to grasp his mitt. Corbett, opening his eyes, flamed with anger. He charged through the circle of admirers and the two fighters were locked in a vicious clinch. Outsiders had to jump in and separate them.

THE INSIDER

English golf titles are about the most elusive things we can think of.

Carpenter will furnish the first real moving target practice Dempsey ever shot at.

Descamps has spilled the beans. He says that he and Georges had many secrets no American must know about until July 2.

The only cups the American golfers will bring back from England will be the hicups.

Dempsey knocked out! It happened in a ball game. They never use that phrase with Dempsey's name in boxing unless they tie an object to it.

They ought to let pitchers work in a trench instead of on a mound. They have to duck a lot of drives.

Carpenter is the odds-on favorite to beat Dempsey among Frenchmen in everything except betting.

Benny Leonard says he will retire from the ring after about four more lucrative bouts. But they must be lucrative.

The Baltimore Orioles have hit their pre-season dope stride. They're over a hundred points to the good and still widening the breach.

Though Connie's kids are holding to the cellar club renown, their seven homers in one game shows you can't keep 'em down.

MISS COLLETT LOST OUT BY ONE STROKE

BROOKLINE, June 8.—Supremacy in eastern golf was denied Miss Glenora Collett, the youthful Providence star, by one stroke in the play for the title at the Country Club yesterday. The girl, 17 years of age, was runner-up to the winner, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, a former national champion in both days of the match. She clinched second honors at the last hole with a four, the only one of the day of that hole.

Mrs. Vanderbeck and Miss Collett led the field of 94 players, including four other former champions, at the end of the first 18 holes. Mrs. Vanderbeck was around in 33 and her youthful opponent in 39.

The Providence girl gained two on the champion with a four at the third, but lost the advantage when she took a five to Mrs. Vanderbeck's three at the seventh. At the ninth, Miss Collett required eight strokes and Mrs. Vanderbeck, on a match play basis, was two up at the turn. Miss Collett was in better form going home.

She entered the final hole with a five to Mrs. Vanderbeck's seven, was one down at the 13th, became two down at the 16th, where Mrs. Vanderbeck got a three, and came within a stroke of tying the title with her unequalled four at the home hole. The card of each for the 18 holes was 39.

Miss Collett had come home in 41 strokes, the best showing of the day for those nine holes. Her play was bold and at crucial points in good form.

In the Pennsylvania-Harvard game last Saturday, Coach Stattery wanted to the field as a spectator. Murphy, who had been warming up with the pitcher, and it is said that when he learned he would not catch a man to run for him, but he had no one to take his place as catcher and was compelled to keep Murphy in the game. Coach Stattery and Captain Emmons of the nine decided that Blair's action merited dismissal from the squad and their action was approved by the advisory committee.

EASTERN STARS IN CHICAGO TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, June 8.—The first group of eastern entries in the national collegiate track and field meet to be held here in June 15, were received here today.

Earl Thomson, world champion high hurdler, headed the list. He will represent Dartmouth, and probably will be accompanied by several of his teammates. It was announced.

Bates entered the Baker twins, one of whom has a record of 2:32 in the two mile run while the other has covered the one mile distance in 4:22.

Other eastern schools entering the meet today were Yale, Amherst, Wesleyan University of Connecticut, and Rochester university.

More than 75 colleges have entered men and it is expected that approximately 500 athletes will take part in the contests.

The meet will be under the auspices of the national collegiate association which announces it as the first really national meet in the country.

and Mr. Lavelle, "not only because they are policemen, but because of the inconsistent statements which they have made on the stand."

The attorney referred to the contention of the defense that Gill had not been shot, but had been injured by tripping over a wire, and said that the testimony of Officer Cooney showed that he believed that Gill had been shot. The attorney asserted that the spot where the officers claimed Gill had fallen was one that the officers could not have seen from the places where they had testified they stood.

Ran Rapidly Afterwards
"The police say that Gill was injured by a fall and yet that he ran rapidly down the railroad bank immediately afterwards," said the attorney. "If he fell and was badly hurt enough to require the services of two doctors later, could he have run very rapidly as the officers have described?" asked Mr. Lavelle.

"The business of the officers on the fair grounds was not to watch Gill and Hamilton and see what happened," asserted the attorney. "They went there to stop crap games. Yet out of 500 people milling around there they seem to have picked out Gill to keep their eyes on."

"It has been testified that Hamilton marked the spot where Gill fell. What was the reason for that if he were not shot?" Hamilton says that after his revolver was discharged Gill ran four or five yards; Cooney says he ran 25 yards; Murphy tells another story.

The plaintiff's witnesses are consistent in their statements, that he fell as soon as the shot was fired. Officer Judge says that he did not pick Gill up after the shot was fired, but that he treated him the same as any other person under arrest. Hamilton says that Judge picked him up.

In the Police Station
Referring to alleged happenings in the police station after Gill had been sent there, Mr. Lavelle said that Dr. Tighe, who examined Gill, was a close associate of the police department, and that if he did not find any evidence of a bullet wound, as had been testified, it was strange that he had sent the plaintiff to the hospital to have an X-ray plate made of a mere scratch that might have been received in a fall. The fact that Dr. Tighe sent Gill to the hospital for X-ray treatment "shows that he had some good reason to believe that there was a bullet wound," said Mr. Lavelle.

"Hamilton has testified," continued the attorney, "that his gun went off accidentally while he was trying to put it in his front trousers pocket. Is it probable that anyone would put a gun in a pocket that way, with the safety catch off, just previous to starting to chase a man?" asked the attorney. "If the gun had been discharged as claimed it would have struck the officer himself."

Mr. Lavelle referred to Hamilton's conduct on the day of the alleged shooting as "one of the most damaging pieces of evidence in the case against the defense."

Why So Worried?
"He says that he did not fire the shot that hit Gill," said the lawyer. "And if he did not why was he so worried afterwards?"

He, or somebody, told the doctors at the police station Gill had been shot. If Hamilton had not shot Gill, why did he not deny the accusation that was made at the corner of Central and Market streets later that he had been involved in a shooting accident? Why did he go to the scene the next day and find the piece of wire on which it is claimed Gill fell?"

How He Was Hurt
In completing this morning a summing up for the defense begun yesterday afternoon, Attorney J. J. Kerwin asserted that Officer Cooney had asked Gill at the police station how he got hurt and that Gill had not said a word about being shot but that he had told Cooney he had fallen over a wire.

"You have Cooney, Hamilton and Judge, who all say they saw Gill fall," said Mr. Kerwin. "If you do not believe that Hamilton has told the truth because he has a financial interest in the case, what are you going to say about the testimony of Cooney and Judge? The sole question in this case is whether you are to believe three police officers or the unsupported story of the plaintiff."

In his charge to the jury, Judge Franklin T. Hammond stated that the police officer had the right to use reasonable force in effecting an arrest. As the offense for which Gill was arrested is not a felony, the officer would not have the right to shoot. He would have had the right to use force short of inflicting a wound injury. "Wanton and wilful injury is different from that caused by negligence," said the judge. "The question for you to determine is whether the officer inflicted reckless and wanton injury."

Referring to the testimony of Edward S. Walsh, a witness for the plaintiff, Mr. Lavelle said that he did not wish to come into court and testify. He was present at the time of the shooting of Gill. "He had seen what had happened to one boy who fell into Hamilton's hands," said the speaker.

In closing Mr. Lavelle said: "Here was a police officer with a determination to 'get somebody' and 'get him' at the suggestion of another officer, and after he had 'got him' he stood over him with a loaded gun in his hand. Gill's remark at the time, 'You've got me,' was natural enough from a boy who expected that the next moment he might be sent into eternity."

REFUGEE CAMP AT PUEBLO, COLO.

Greatest Step Toward Restoration of Normal Conditions in Flood District

Famous Doughnut Girl and the Salines Assist—45 Bodies in Morgues

PUEBLO, Colo., June 8.—Establishment of a refugee camp today to receive those made homeless by the flood is regarded as Pueblo's greatest step toward restoration of normal conditions. Refugees will be removed from various public buildings to the tent city. There are about 2000 homeless in the city, many of whom are Mexicans and virtually helpless.

Relief work was rapidly being sys-tematized. The lighting system was being steadily improved, and with the expected installation today of a water purifier, the solution of another vexing problem bode fair to be solved.

Twenty-five Salvation Army workers are here from Denver, Colorado, Spring and Trinidad, and the meals for the refugee camp have been turned over to them.

Adjutant Margaret Sheldon, one of those who made the famous doughnut in France, is in the party. She will turn out large piles of doughnuts here.

Forty-two bodies of flood victims were in the morgues of the city today, but the authorities said many bodies probably had not been recovered.

First Train Leaves Pueblo
DENVER, Colo., June 8.—The first of last week arrived in Denver early today bringing 350 refugees and tourists who were marooned there.

INAUGURAL BY M. I. T. PRESIDENT

Dr. Nichols Urges More Wholesome Relations Between Capital and Labor

And Application of Scientific Knowledge to Processes of Industry

BOSTON, June 8.—More intensive application of scientific knowledge and research to the processes of industry, and the cultivation of more wholesome relations between labor and management, were presented as the two outstanding industrial problems of the times in the inaugural address which Dr. Ernest H. Nichols delivered today as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Both these problems, he said, might rightly claim attention in any modern scheme of technical education.

Distinguishing between research in applied science which has a practical objective, and that in pure science which seeks the discovery of new knowledge without thought of immediate material benefit to anybody, Dr.
Nichols urged that technical schools owe to modern industry the more intensive cultivation of research with increasing emphasis on pure science. Every possible means should be used, he said, to train up more men in pure science, men competent to enter the vital and important field of research to supply the rapidly increasing demand for workers in the laboratories of progressive industry.

Discussing the relations between labor and management, Dr. Nichols pointed out that the older or traditional attitude toward labor unrest was that the questions involved were purely economic ones.

"Now the true essence of successful industry," he continued, "is mutual respect between the employee and manager, willing co-operation, a sense of mutual opportunity and responsibility and a shared personal or institutional loyalty. But these factors are human rather than economic. Economic necessity alone is not only powerless to create them, but often operates to weaken or destroy them.
Human relationships in industry we have now and always have had, and whether recognized or not, they have counted quite as much trouble as purely economic conditions for the state of a laborer's mind, more even than the state of his purse, determines his acts."

"Our technical schools are training the future brainworkers and managers of industry. We may, therefore, well ask ourselves, at this time, if there is anything we are doing to train our students to understand more fundamentally the human factors in industry, to meet more successfully the gravest of all their future responsibilities, the organization and management of men—a responsibility which they and we owe, not to industry alone, but to the whole economic, social and political stability of the nation."

Dr. Nichols said he knew no better measure of a man's real education than the adequacy of his thought and action in whatever actual situations he might find himself for adequacy of thought and action implies some hold on world experience. To train our students to introduce to the industrial world courses at the expense of other background building studies. This temptation, which is the argument for yielding to it, must nevertheless be steadily and firmly resisted.

Informally calling upon Dr. Nichols to accept the presidency, Dr. Elihu Thomson, acting president since the death of President MacLaurin, declared the needs of such an institution demanded a "rare man" as its leader.
The governing board, he said, felt that Dr. Nichols was the man for whom they had sought.

Tribute to New President
He referred to the inaugural president as a man "of highest attainments in science, whose lifelong work has known throughout the world, the result of many honors here and abroad, chosen to membership in the few societies of the highest rank, experienced as professor and teacher, and a most successful administrator as president of Dartmouth college for eight years."

To men who have preceded Dr.
Nichols, earnestly supported by faculty, alumni and friends of the school, Dr. Thompson attributed Technology's success in the little more than a half century of its existence, in establishing upon a firm basis technical education and engineering training. Their efforts, he said, had led to the general recognition of the value and necessity for the kind of training for which the school had stood "work founded on thorough scientific research and investigation as against rule of thumb or traditional methods merely; not a narrow specialization but by learning which looks forward as well as backward; that uses the history as a means of inspiration for further future advance and achievement."

Prof. Henry P. Talbot, chairman of the faculty, in welcoming Dr. Nichols, declared the activities of the world had enabled him public to discover that the college professor, after all, is a useful citizen, who can and does give good account of himself in time of emergency. During the war period he added, the college professor rendered service which was distinguished for maturity of conception and systematic execution.

The well high uninterrupted career of prosperity of the Institute was declared by President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university a guest at the inaugural ceremonies to have been one of the impressive things in the history of the community and of national education.

PLUMBERS NOTIFIED OF WAGE REDUCTION

The local master plumbers have notified the journeymen plumbers that a 10 per cent reduction in wages will go into effect at a date to be set later and the employers are now awaiting action on the part of the union to either accept or reject the proposition.
In the meantime everyone is working and no one man stands this morning, all is serene.

The journeymen plumbers are now receiving $1 an hour and it is the intention of the master plumbers to reduce their wages to the same level as that of the steamfitters, who were recently given a reduction of 10 cents an hour, and notice to that effect was served on the Journeymen Plumbers' union a few days ago, but as yet no action has been taken by the latter organization.

A verdict for the defendant was returned in the superior court this afternoon in the case of William Charles Gill, 23 Bowden street, for the recovery of damages for injuries alleged to have been received as the result of having been "recklessly and wantonly" shot by Policeman Charles A. Hamilton on the Fair grounds, November 6, 1920.

In a closing argument for the plaintiff today Attorney Raymond J. Lavette severely arraigned members of the local police force for their methods and statements made in court. He asserted that they had tried to protect each other in testifying.

Testimony that had previously been offered in the case had been to the effect that several police officers had been called to break up Sunday cran games on the Fair grounds and that Gill, claiming to have been an innocent spectator, had started to run when a cry was raised that the police

NEW YORK, June 8.—Declaring that it would be the height of folly for the United States to disarm first, Secretary of War Weeks in an address today to the graduating class of New York university said he hoped to see this nation prepared to defend its rights, its sovereignty and its citizens until the day comes when all nations by mutual consent dismantle their fortifications and scrap their navies. The university conferred upon Secretary Weeks the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

"I do not love war," the secretary declared. "I abhor it. No rational being who has a clear realization of its meaning wants to have his country become engaged in war, but conditions may arise which make it, with all its horrors, the only alternative to a dishonorable peace. Then every patriotic citizen wants war."

"I do not anticipate war," Mr. Weeks asserted, "but there are active and feverish military preparations among those with whom we might possibly come in contact. And I want to say here and now that I cannot give a moment's serious consideration

READY FOR ACTION

The chamber of commerce street initiative petitions will be presented to the municipal council probably on Friday of this week and not later than Saturday. It was announced today at the chamber's rooms.

There has been more or less discussion as to whether the petitions should go to the election commissioners or to the city clerk, but after securing legal advice from a local attorney on the matter, the chamber decided that the petitions would be a municipal council matter at first and would have nothing to do with elections until the council acts one way or another. Accordingly, it was decided to turn the petitions into the city clerk for presentation to the council.

More than 3000 verified signatures have been obtained and this afternoon the chamber officials were engaged in rounding up those that are still out. The council will probably take action on the matter at its meeting next Tuesday.

Mary—Like All of Us— Wants "Something Different"

ON THE RIGHT, MARY PICKFORD. THE LITTLE BOY IS MARY, TOO. THESE ARE HER DUAL CHARACTERS IN "LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY"

BY JAMES W. DEAN

Our Mary, our little Mary, wants to grow up. She says she's bound down by the limitations of childhood roles.

"There is nothing finer than interpreting child life," declares Mrs. Doug. "But all my life I've wanted to do something equally as good in a grown-up part."

"I hope it will be different some day. I want to contribute something else to the photoplay, even if I could do it only once successfully."

Mary, four feet eleven and weighing 100 pounds, has been doing child parts for 12 years. The movie public has come to know her and to think of her in such roles, and to love her. But Mary is like all the rest of us restless creatures. We always want more than we have, no matter what or how much we have.

Theda Bara gained fame, favor and wealth as a vampire. Then she essayed the speaking stage in an attempt to make people forget her as a vampire. The attempt met with indifferent success.

Some day we may look to see Charlie Chaplin as Hamlet, or Charlie Ray as a villain, or Will Rogers as a matinee idol, or Olga Petrova as a hoyden, but they will be remembered as the characters which first brought them fame.

Getting back to Mary—she will play both child and grown-up roles in "The Little Lord Fauntleroy." She will be the little lord and his mother, dearest.

HEADACHES

I suffer with terrific headaches at the base of the brain and across the forehead. These headaches come as often as two, four and six weeks and last from two to four days. After terrible pains for a day, I become very sick and nauseated.

It is impossible merely on the basis of your letter to determine the cause of your headaches. Many different conditions could cause them. Only a very careful examination by a qualified physician, supplemented, perhaps, by examinations by various specialists, could hope to discover and remove the source of the trouble.

Terrible headaches come with arterial trouble, especially with hardening of the arteries, and are then usually associated with increased attacks of high blood pressure. Perhaps the commonest form of recurring headache is due to constipation.

Encephalitis Lethargica

The doctors thought I had neuritis and typhoid fever about a year ago, but discovered just recently, in a hospital that I had had encephalitis lethargica, or sleeping sickness. They told me at the hospital that there was nothing but the effects of encephalitis lethargica, and that they could not do much for it; that I would have to wear it away. My left arm aches nearly all the time, and I am very nervous, and my jaw jerks most of the time. Is there any place where progress has been made in treating encephalitis, or is there anything that can be done for it?

Encephalitis lethargica is an obscure disorder, which has been fairly prevalent in the last few years. If you have recovered from the acute stage of the trouble, you have been correctly advised by the doctors when they told you that the rest of it will have to be left to time. Experience indicates that it is often many months before the patient is restored to health. Do not let this discourage you, but be thankful that you have come through this serious disease so well. Lead a normal life in every way. See that you get plenty of good food, fresh air, rest, healthful diversion and a proper amount of suitable exercise.

Hemorrhages

A person who has tuberculosis is in the city sanatorium here to 12 years. He has been having hemorrhages. After a person like this has been having hemorrhages, is it possible to cure him?

Even when a person has hemorrhages, complete recovery is sometimes possible. In fact hemorrhage is sometimes an early symptom of tuberculosis. Let the patient remain in the sanatorium and follow the doctor's advice.

Obesity

I am a girl of 23, medium height and build, but have very large hips. I have tried everything I know to reduce, but so far I have not been able to do so. I have taken morning exercises, tried drinking the juice of a lemon before breakfast, and at the present time I am taking a wine glass of salt, but I cannot reduce, no matter what I do.

There is no way in which you can reduce one part of the body without reducing generally. If you will send me your name and address I will send you a leaflet dealing with obesity.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

A. F. L. Plans Big Organization Drive for Members

An intensive organization drive is to be started this month by the American Federation of Labor, according to President Samuel Gompers.

Gompers' statement contains allegations that the employers, realizing the open shop drive has failed, are now attacking labor organization through a scheme of representation.

A recommendation introduced at the National Manufacturers' association in New York, that workers should be represented on boards of directors of corporations, is merely a "trap" to workers, Gompers charges, and is intended to encourage the disorganization of organized labor.

Sincerity of the employers can best be shown through the medium of the pay envelope, Gompers states.

During the coming drive, the message of trade unionism will be carried to every corner of the nation, in so far as possible, Gompers says.

Issue Statements

The right of labor to organize and bargain collectively is recognized in a book issued by the National Catholic Welfare council through Fathers John A. Ryan and Dr. A. McGowan.

The book suggests, in answer to the question of what should be done to settle the economic dispute.

Recognition of the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively, a gradual change of status for the worker, so that he will be a partner rather than a servant in production, hence labor participation in management.

Salvation Army "Doughnut Girl" Paints Graphic Word Picture of War Scenes

Praising the gallantry and chivalry of the doughboys in the world war, saying that during weeks that she was alone with strange troops near the front line trenches she felt as safe as in her own home, Miss Irene McIntyre drew graphic word pictures of life in the battle-scarred area of France at the last meeting of the Lowell Congregational club in the Highland church last night. During the evening reports were read, officers were elected and there was solo singing by Miss Hazel P. Tuttle.

"The greatest affliction of our boys in France during the early days of the war," asserted Miss McIntyre, "was that they sorely missed their mothers, sisters, wives and sweethearts. The necessity of providing a home atmosphere for the boys was early realized by the Salvation Army. Out of our determination to provide this grew the trying of doughnuts. We wished to provide some simple, home-like food that would be slightly sweet, and we found that the one we could most successfully make on our cooking apparatus was the doughnut."

On the Marne

Miss McIntyre told of her early experiences at the front along the Marne. She said that she carried on her work out of doors with snow on the ground and ice melting and dripping water from overhead. Later she went into a hut where water came in through the roof and dripped into the melted doughnut fat. She said that some days her party cooked 2400 doughnuts and 100 pies, and that water poured into the hut so freely that it was necessary for the army lassies to plow their way around in rubber boots.

The speaker told of her first meeting with the boys of the 26th Division. "For 35 hours," she said, "the boys had been without warm food." She said that hot coffee and cocoa were quickly provided and that the men stretched out their hands quivering with fatigue to receive it. The speaker told of one doughboy who ate 21 eggs she had cooked for him. "I was alarmed as to what might happen," said Miss McIntyre, "but he did not suffer any harm."

Under Shell Fire

The speaker told of her first experiences under shell fire and of the rush to a dugout in which she stayed for several hours with water and mud up to the knees. She said that people had asked her since her return if she was afraid when shells were bursting overhead and that she had not been able to tell whether or not she was frightened. She said that in times of great danger her knees behaved strangely, and she told of another army lassie who, when the shell began to scream, put a helmet on her head, crawled under a small table and began to giggle.

Miss McIntyre described her experience when the Germans broke through the American line and she was given 20 minutes to get out of town. She told of her efforts to save trinkets which had been given to her by the boys as they were going into action with instructions to send them home to friends and relatives if they did not come back. The flight, with shrieking shrieking overhead and deep mud under her foot was graphically pictured, and the speaker told of her first meeting with General Edwards and of his kindness to herself.

Gas and Liquid Fire

The speaker gave a stirring description of gas attacks and the use of liquid fire and of a daylight raid in which a large party of American soldiers were wiped out by fire from machine guns nestled in trees.

The story of a long night ride up to the front line trenches was told by the speaker. She described the battle-scarred hills and fields as they appeared in the ghastly light of the moon and told of the boys—Catholics, Protestants and Jews, boys of all creeds and faiths and of none—joining in singing "Nearer, My God, To Thee" at the midnight hour.

In closing Miss McIntyre said that she returned from France to find that the war had largely broken down class and other barriers. She spoke of the need of co-operation to meet the great problems of today. She appealed to the churches to prevent the erection again of class and caste barriers and said that America is responsible for the future of the world because to it has been given a greater vision than to any other nation.

During the evening a report was read by Secretary-Treasurer Louis Alexander, in which it was shown that the club now has 255 members and a substantial sum in the treasury.

Movies Could Not Do Better

Rev. A. F. Jenkins of North Chelmsford, in delivering the report of the home work committee, spoke of more than 1000 people being in attendance at the First Congregational church last Sunday to greet a new pastor and said, "few movie shows could do better than that." He referred to Rev. A. G. Lyon of the Pawtucket church as having gathered in something of the "spirit of the lion of Judah," and mentioned the work of the church in planting trees and shrubs and expressed a wish that other Congregational churches might similarly beautify their grounds. He said that in the Eliot church it had been found necessary to re-cover the pews cushions because "people stayed so long in church." He said that the work in the Dracut, Tyngsboro and Chelmsford churches is flourishing and said that the North Chelmsford church is drawing larger crowds than either the dance hall or the movies.

The retiring president, Haven C. Hill, referred to the fact that the club had a 100 per cent increase in cash in treasury and 38 per cent increase in membership during the year.

Rev. A. S. Beale, newly elected president, greeted the members of the club in behalf of the Highland church. "We ought to be better Christians and better Americans this year than ever before," he said. The word "loyalty" should make a special appeal to us. We should be loyal to our churches wherever we go; we should appreciate the fact that the spirit of Congregationalism is the same that underlies the institutions of our republic."

Officers Elected

During the evening the following officers of the club were elected: President, Rev. A. S. Beale. Vice-president, Charles L. Randall. Secretary and treasurer, Louis Alexander.

Home work committee: Rev. E. A. Jenkins, Rev. John G. Lovell, D.D., Rev. A. G. Lyon, Rev. J. M. Craik, Rev. W. B. Tuttle, D.D., Rev. Arthur C. McGiffert, Jr., Rev. P. E. Thomas.

INTEREST ON BONDS PAYABLE 15TH INST.

More than $11,000,000 will be payable to New England holders of Liberty bonds and Victory notes on June 15. This would figure nearly $6, on the average, for each of the 1,753,613 original subscribers to the two loans. It is the interest on the first loan—$12, 4s, 4 1/2s and 2nd 4 1/2s under that issue as originally made and after the conversions—and the Victory loan—$3s and 3 1/2s, totaling $11,015,500. The amounts that will be payable in this district on June 15, both to holders of bearer and registered bonds, are as follows:

First loan—$12s, $2,056,333; 1s, $161,166; 4 1/2s, $753,166; 2nd—$12s, $616,666; Victory notes—$3s, $6,304,553 and 3 1/2s, $1,299,053. The subscribers as originally recorded in New England were: First loan, 27,791 and Victory loan, $17,522. Throughout the country the interest payments due at this time will total $13,218,000, which is a substantial evidence of the United States treasury's policy of paying its debts in full when they fall due. Not one person among the 66,356,000 purchasers of Liberty bonds and Victory notes in the entire country ever has had to wait a day beyond the date fixed on the bond coupons for the collection of his interest. The principal will be paid with equal promptness.

AGAINST PRICE FIXING COMBINATIONS

NEW YORK, June 8.—The New York legislature at its next session will be asked to erect stronger legal barriers against price fixing combinations, its committee investigating building trusts expects to recommend legislation intended to preclude a repetition of collusion, uniform price making and extortion such as it has exposed during hearings in New York.

This committee, it has been learned from official sources, favors jail and penitentiary sentences for individuals who prey upon public or private purses by choking free competition. It does not consider that fines impose sufficient punishment upon such men.

For violations of state anti-trust laws a minimum sentence of six months probably will be recommended in the proposed legislation. In this way, Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, contends that officers of concerns convicted of gouging the public suffer as much, at least, as those guilty of disorderly conduct.

Conspiracy to defraud the city, an occurrence which the investigation brought out had not been infrequent in the past, would be made a felony if the committee recommendations were adopted.

Other suggestions will be to compel every contractor dealing with the city to agree not to compare quotations with others; to forbid contractors from belonging to any association that hampers the offering of unrestricted bids and to compel them to submit a list of all sub-contractors engaged on a particular piece of construction work.

It is understood the committee also will request the legislature to prohibit agreements between labor and employers where the union fixes the price which employers must charge builders for labor.

Along with these recommendations for lowering the cost of construction, the committee is expected to ask the legislature to ease the financial phases of building by requiring banks and insurance companies to place a certain percentage of their resources into real estate mortgages.

The committee expects to conclude its long series of open hearings in June, but the housecleaning among building trades may go on much longer. Additional indictments are predicted by Mr. Untermyer.

Already more than 200 individuals and concerns have been fined or sentenced to imprisonment as a result of the inquiry. Sixteen master plumbers were sent to the workhouse after the committee finished with them and their organization. They were found guilty of restraint of trade. Seven other men were sentenced to penitentiary terms, among them the wealthy labor leader, Robert P. Brindell and John T. Hettrick, a lawyer who operated secret codes for various building groups.

Others who were heavily fined included 21 plumbers and plumbing concerns, 29 cut stone contractors, 15 sand and gravel dealers, 12 building material men and 11 firms controlled by them. Twenty-three plumbers were given suspended sentences.

PERUVIAN GOVERNMENT PUBLISHES PAPER

LIMA, June 8.—The Peruvian government is now engaged in the publication of a daily newspaper, an unusual venture in South America. This is the result of seizure by the government of the newspaper, La Prensa, in March last. The council of ministers issued a decree authorizing expropriation of the newspaper on the ground that it was "the centre of a conspiracy" and that for the past two years it had been "a deliberate inciter of rebellion and revolt."

The attempt of the government to control the conduct of the La Prensa has been the cause of much comment among Peruvian newspapers and newspaper men. El Comercio, the dean of the Lima newspapers, has charged in an editorial that the government has committed a "most grave attack against liberty of thought and against private property."

There is a legal battle on to compel the government to surrender the newspaper to its former director, Luis F. Cisneros. Augusto Durand, founder of La Prensa, has been a political exile for more than 15 months and is now said to be in Bolivia. Senator Cisneros is conducting the legal fight to recover possession of the paper which is now administered by an editorial force and business management installed by government agents.

Cisneros has obtained a writ from the constitutional court ordering the prefect of police to restore the property to him but the prefect has avoided doing so by notifying the court that the paper is in the hands of the government. Cisneros then brought suit for a writ in the supreme court of Peru, demanding a return of the property, but this was denied. The court held that it could not yet interfere under the expropriation law enacted about 10 years ago.

Meantime the government has deposited the equivalent of about $55,000 to the credit of the former owner of the paper, this amount representing its value fixed by an inventory. The public is watching the contest and awaiting the next step with much interest.

JUNE IS MONTH FOR OUT-DOOR PARTIES

BY SISTER MARY

June is the month of picnics and class suppers and all sorts of delightful, but-of-doors informal party times. That you may always be ready even for the most impromptu picnic keep a picnic shelf in the pantry. Simple sandwiches and foods taste good in the open air so plan your shelf with the idea of eliminating fussing.

Here are some suggestions as to how to maintain a simple, easy and at the same time satisfying picnic stand.

Choose your supplies with family tastes in mind. Have a good assortment of sandwich fillings. Hard-boiled eggs, several kinds of sandwiches, cookies, fruit and coffee make a picnic that pleases everybody. Canned meats and fish can be used in a salad or as sandwich fillings.

A bottle of plain olives and one of stuffed olives always help out.

Pimento cheese, baked beans, peas, peanut butter, olive butter and a bottle of salad dressing will be found useful.

Keep oiled paper, cups, plates, napkins, salt and pepper shakers in the lunch kit or basket.

Menus for Picnics

Potato salad, corned beef sandwiches, plain bread and butter sandwiches, coconut cookies, strawberries, coffee.

June evenings are apt to be cool, so hot coffee in the thermos bottle will be better than lemonade. There are always potatoes in the house and if they aren't cooked boil them with the skins on and peel them while warm. And there's always an onion. But if there isn't a cucumber use pickled cucumbers cut in the thin slices and add a hard-boiled egg or two.

My Own Recipes
Baked beans, lettuce sandwiches, stuffed olive sandwiches, cottage cheese and marmalade sandwiches, oranges, hickorynut macaroons, tea.

With baked beans a salad is not necessary if the sandwiches are highly flavored and moist. Tea and oranges combine better than coffee and oranges.

Salmon salad, plain bread and butter, sandwiches, potato chips, ginger snaps, bananas, coffee.

All these menus are simple and easy to prepare. Salad is sometimes a problem to pack, but a quart jar may be used or there are light enamel bowls that are just the thing for picnics and use in the refrigerator. They may be found in several sizes and have little weight.

Coconut Cookies
One-half teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups flour, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 2 tablespoons hot water, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1/2 cup coconut.

Sift baking powder and flour into a mixing bowl. Make a hole in the center and add remaining ingredients. Dissolve the soda in the hot water, drop from spoon on a buttered and floured baking sheet and bake in a hot oven.

Hickorynut Macaroons
Three-fourth cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup hickory-nut meats, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat eggs well and beat in sugar.

Add flour, baking powder and salt sifted together. Add vanilla and mix well. Drop from spoon on buttered and floured baking sheet and bake in a quick oven.

THERE'S SOMETHING NEW AFTER ALL

Sometimes one gets the idea that "there is nothing new under the sun." Perhaps not—but there are ways of combining "things under the sun" that make something new.

As manufacturers of temperance beverages for many years, the proprietors of Chelmsford Spring Ginger Ale and the other ten popular flavors could be said.

Not so. A unique contest aiming to obtain further recipes, where their delicious beverages are used, has recently been conducted. Three capital prizes of $35, $25 and $15 respectively were awarded and a case of selected beverages to other contestants. The interest was unusual.

Well over a hundred different recipes were submitted. These combinations have been tried. Many have proven truly delicious—and the company has compiled a little folder containing prize recipes for free distribution to the readers of The Lowell Sun. You can have a copy by addressing "The Ginger Ale People," Chelmsford, Mass.

MOLLY VARNUM RECEPTION
A novel form of remembrance for Molly Varnum was held yesterday afternoon at the Spalding house, when a "reception to Molly Varnum" was given by the organization which bears her name, the Molly Varnum chapter, D.A.R. Garbed in the quaint and huddled costume of the days in which

LOWELL HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA AND ITS DIRECTOR, FRED O. BLUNT

One of the most successful and talented organizations of the student body of the Lowell high school is the school orchestra which under the direction of Fred O. Blunt, director of music in the public schools, has made rapid strides in its work until this year it is to have the honor of accompanying the class of 1921 in the musical numbers of its graduation exercises a few weeks hence.

This is the first time in the history of the school, it is believed, that the music for the exercises will be furnished by an orchestra made up of students.

The orchestra was first started seven years ago when the idea of grouping the instrumental talent of the students into a single organization was conceived and Mr. Blunt agreed to undertake the direction of the work. Although its personnel has changed each year, the orchestra has been dominated by one motive—to serve the school whenever possible and to the best of its ability. Never has it refused to come to the front when requested and now it is a customary and expected part of all of the school's patriotic exercises, entertainments and debates.

To be able to respond to the various calls made upon it the orchestra has had to practice faithfully and regularly, and week in and week out it meets with Mr. Blunt in the school hall for a two-hour rehearsal. These weekly rehearsals have resulted in a most proficient organization and one whose performance would do credit to a much older group of players.

The personnel of the orchestra is as follows: Pianist, Karl Marshall; violinists, Miss Margaret Goggin, Miss Dorothy Farley, Miss Margaret Kelley, Saul Stein, Thomas McNiff and Chas. Flood; concertists, Donald Court and Wilbur Roberts; trombonist, Joseph L. Horgan; saxophonist, Paul, Irish, and drums, Samuel Dickson.

ANNUAL MUSICAL AT NOTRE DAME ACADEMY

Another delightful exemplification of the expert and detailed musical training offered students at Notre Dame academy in this city, was given this afternoon in the academy hall in Adams street, when the annual musical was presented before an appreciative audience that filled the prettily decorated hall to capacity.

The musicale was up to the usual high standard of Notre Dame affairs. The program in detail was as follows: Jubilee Overture..... Bach Orchestra. The Revel of the Nalads..... Little children. The hall was decorated with potted palms, carnations and other floral adornments. Among the guests of the occasion were Mayor Perry D. Thompson, Rev. Michael J. Scanlon, director of the Catholic charities and a musician of note, together with priests from the various parishes of Lowell and greater Boston. Especially effective was the harp playing of Miss Estelle Coffey and the harp accompaniment of Miss Margaret Cahill in the "Panis angelicus" was noteworthy.

One of the prettiest parts of the afternoon's program was "The Revel of the Nalads," in which the younger children of the school took part. This number was a series of beautiful tableaux with the children carrying hoops decorated with flowers. All the young women who took part in the musicale were dressed in white. Honors for music were awarded as follows: Silver medals for piano, Sybil Desmarais, Yolande LeBlanc, Marguerite Bourgeois and Agnes Nolin. Testimonials: Piano, Mary Nagle, Juliette Marin and Irene Burns; violin, Simone Sylvestre.

The members of the orchestra were as follows: First violins—Marguerite Rochette, Marguerite Bourgeois, Agnes Nolin, Irene Burns, Juliette Marin, Helen O'Hara, Elsie Duffy, Irene De Lorme. The Pictures Are Before You CHOOSE!

"NAP-A-MINIT"

Used by Dr. Gagnon in His Superior PORCELAIN DENTISTRY

Take a good look at these pictures—they tell the story of Two Kinds of Dentistry. The left hand picture is of a man being treated in the old harsh method employed to this day by many dentists. Note the rigid position of the patient as he sits upright, gripping the doctor's arm, hindering him in his work, and making his own pain necessarily greater. Every nerve in his body is on edge—every muscle tense—he is indeed the personification of fear and pain. This is Dentistry as I Do Not Do It.

Now turn to the picture on your right. Here you see festfulness and relaxation, a patient that feels no pain, yet is in control of every other sense. He can talk and hear and watch the doctor, unhindered, do his very best work. This is an example of Dentistry as I Do Practice It.

This is what "Nap-a-Minit" has done for all my Patients. "Nap-a-Minit" is a positive pain destroyer and absolutely eliminates all pain in dentistry. With its use, one may have teeth and roots, extracted, nerves removed, cavities prepared and filled, crowns and bridge-work inserted and every conceivable kind of dental operation performed without the slightest fear or dread because It Will Not Hurt.

Now that you have seen the two pictures and know the story that they tell, it is up to you to Choose if you have dental work to be done. Will you have pain and harsh treatment or will you have "Nap-a-Minit" and no pain at my office? There is little doubt about your answer and when you come here you will find the greatest service and value-giving dental offices in New England.

SOMEBODY STOLE MAX'S HORSE AND PONY

Max Cohen of Braut has reported to the police here the loss of a bay horse and pony. He requests that anyone finding these animals, either alone, or in company with a group who have helped themselves to sundry articles hereabouts, from linens to straw hats, notify him by telephone, number 1795. If the animals prove to have been stolen rather than strayed, the police would also be pleased to be informed.

CIRCUS HORSES IN PINK OF CONDITION

Agent Richardson of the Lowell Humane society visited the circus grounds at 7 a. m. today, and made a thorough examination of the horses. He reports that the animals all appeared in excellent condition. He failed to discover any galled spots in any case, although carefully going over nearly every horse in the outfit. In some circuses of smaller size in the past, there have been found horses not properly cared for and unsuited to the work they were required to do. However, the Sells-Flote organization, states the agent, has been given a 100 per cent clean bill.

HARD-BOILED MAKES SOFT GETAWAY

A hard-boiled driver indeed has been reported at headquarters by the Humane society officials. This party was driving a lame horse on Market st. yesterday, when Assistant Agent Dunlop of the organization stopped him. For his pains the Humane society man received a swat in the face from the driver's whip. The horse was the next recipient of a lashing, and despite his lameness was induced to depart the vicinity at high speed. The police are looking for the individual so impartial as to whom he wallows with his whip.

Fighting Disease Germs

There is a popular idea that most sickness is caused by a germ of the disease, finding entrance to our bodies through the food we eat, the water or milk we drink or the air we breathe. This is true as far as it goes, but it is also true that disease germs are entering our bodies every day without causing disease.

The reason for this is that there are forces within the body that are constantly fighting these disease germs and it is only when this defense is weakened that the germs get the upper hand and we become ill. One of the most powerful of these forces that work for health is rich, red blood. Good, healthy blood increases the resistance of the body to the diseases that are always threatening. It is easier to keep up this resistance by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, eating proper food, avoiding articles of food that do not agree with us and getting plenty of fresh air and light, than it is to cure the disease after it gets a foothold. Keep up the resistance of your body to disease by these tonic pills, which you can get at any drug store, and you will avoid such sickness.

Hughes Draws up New Treaty Calling for Safe-guards for U. S. Property.

Signing of Pact Would Automatically Accomplish Recognition

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The United States has proposed a treaty of amity and commerce with Mexico, it was announced yesterday at the state department, in which Mexico will agree to safeguard the rights of property in that country held by American citizens which was attached before the constitution of 1917 was promulgated. The signing of the treaty automatically would accomplish recognition of the Mexican government.

Discussed by Cabinet
Formal announcement of the administration's policy toward Mexico was made after the subject had been discussed at the regular cabinet meeting, President Harding and his advisers had before them a communication from President Obregon relating to the proposed treaty, which was presented to the Mexican president by George T. Summerlin, the American charge, at Mexico City, on May 27.

The text of Obregon's reply has been withheld and administration officers decline to discuss it or to make any comment as to the relation to it of the announcement of policy made public by Secretary Hughes. It is understood, however, that Obregon referred to the negotiations which are proceeding with Mr. Summerlin, and indicated a willingness to carry them forward. It is known that he has summoned to the capital Ministers Calles and De la Huerta, who are reported to have gone against the signing of such a treaty at a Mexican cabinet conference held after it had become known in Mexico City that a treaty of this character would be proposed by the United States.

Secretary Hughes' announcement contained no reference to the attitude assumed by President Obregon, but it did say that if Mexico did not contemplate a confederate policy with regard to property, the American government could "conceive of no possible objection to the treaty."

It was stated that the proposed treaty contained "the conventional stipulations as to commerce and reciprocal rights in both countries" that it provided for the settlement of claims for losses of life and property, and a provision for a "just settlement of boundary matters."

The department's statement said that the fundamental question which faced the United States in considering its relations with Mexico was the safeguarding of property rights against confiscation. It was emphasized that this question should not be confused with any matter of personalities or the recognition of any particular administration, and the declaration was made that whenever Mexico was ready to give assurances that she would perform her fundamental obligations in the protection both of persons and of rights of property validly acquired there would be "no obstacle to the most advantageous relations between the two peoples."

OLD AGE, HIS MARK!

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the charming discourse of "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," refers to an unmistakable sign of old age. It is three parallel lines between the brows.

We can detect the first traces of disfigurement by signs just as this. When a woman suffers from backache, nervous depression, dragging-down pains and those ailments peculiar to women, it is plain that she needs a woman's medicine. What other medicine could she more wisely resort to than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for half a century has proved the natural restorative for these troubles.—Adv.

LABOR TROUBLES AND WAGE REDUCTIONS

(Special to The Sun)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, June 6.—That labor troubles arising out of wage reductions have reached their peak, and are now on the down grade, is the opinion of Edward Fisher of Westford, chairman of the state board of conciliation and arbitration.

Discussing the matter today, Chairman Fisher said his recent contacts with labor leaders have indicated that, unless employers adopt an unreasonable policy with respect to wage reductions, there is not likely to be any further serious labor disturbance in the near future.

"We have found labor leaders generally," he said, "prepared to admit that in a time of declining prices of commodities it is necessary for the employer to accept a lower wage. We are now passing through such a time, and although there are a number of strikes now in progress, scattered all over the commonwealth, it cannot be said that the number is greater than is ordinarily the case. The most serious disturbance just at present is that in the building trade in Springfield, and agents of the board are endeavoring to bring about a settlement of that controversy."

"In several recent cases, this board has fixed twelve and a half per cent as the maximum reduction in wages that is at present justifiable. That figure, it is interesting to note, has been approved by the railroad labor board in its recent decision reducing the wages of railroad employees. That figure also, has been generally accepted by employees in this state, and unless employers attempt to exceed it, in their desire to reduce expenses too speedily, there is no indication that they will find themselves involved in serious disputes with their employees."

"There are some who appear to believe that reductions in wages should keep step with reductions in the cost of living, but obviously that is impossible, and the labor men contend, in addition, that even if it were possible, it would be unfair."

"It should be borne in mind that reductions in wages have a considerable effect upon the cost of living. Each reduction in wages means a decrease in the cost of living; sometimes that decrease is felt immediately, and sometimes its effect is not apparent for months, this being regulated by the nature of the industry. In cases where wage reductions are, or should be, immediately reflected in living costs, it would necessitate constant changes in the wage scale if any attempt were made to keep it parallel with the cost of living.

"But the labor leaders point out that when, during the war, the cost of living jumped by leaps and bounds, there were many industries in which wages did not increase at an equal pace, and they insist that in those industries, at least, reductions should also be made more slowly. There appears to be much force in this argument, but the obvious difficulty will be in determining to which industries this claim should be applied.

"It is the hope and belief of this board that both employers and employees, speaking generally, will adopt a reasonable view of the wage question, and if that proves the case, there appears no reason to expect any material increase in the number of persons in this state unemployed at the present time."

Addresses to Our Graduates by Two Well Known Educators

The Sun today presents to the young men and young women of Lowell, who are being graduated from high schools and colleges, two addresses of great consideration. The address to girls is written by Luetie Bentley, a pioneer woman educator, who for 40 years has been a distinguished member of the faculty of Lake Erie college at Painesville, O., a famous institution for girls. The address to young men is written by Harry Pratt Judson, president of Chicago university, one of America's greatest educational institutions.

By HARRY P. JUDSON
President Chicago University
During June many thousands of young men throughout the country are receiving diplomas from schools and colleges.

The occasion is properly known as "commencement."
It must not be assumed, however, that when a student leaves his school or college he is beginning life. He is, in fact, simply passing from work of one kind to another for which his training ought to make him proficient. School or college training is a great good fortune. It is only the minority who are able to avail themselves of it. These few, therefore, have a rare privilege which they ought to value highly.

Life is strenuous; it has trials and difficulties. But even so, it should be thoroughly happy. One properly educated has his understanding opened to many sources of true delight.

Value of Education.
Education does not consist primarily in what one knows. The young graduate does not know very much. But if he has learned what he can do well and how he can do it, he is well educated.

What society needs in you, young man, is the power for effective work. The graduate should do more things and do them better because of his school life; otherwise his schooling is wasted.

The graduate should remember that he is in debt to society for his education. Whether he has paid tuition fees or not makes little difference. Such fees do not usually amount to more than one-third of the cost of schooling. The rest is given to him by the generosity of the state or of individuals.

The graduate, therefore, should repay the community for the special privilege of education afforded him, by being a good and useful citizen.

By LUETIE BENTLEY
Pioneer Woman Educator
You young women who are being graduated from our high schools and colleges this month are leaving the school doors with a broader and more tender appreciation of life. That is your particular gift.

There is no human measure of the value of your trained personality in its ministry in the home, the school, the office—in any of your opportunities.

The greater numbers of you each year seeking for higher education are inspiring proof of your growing thoughtfulness. You have not understood, perhaps, but you have felt the need of special training for a special part in life. There was definite purpose in that indefinite urge. For through it you have yourself in hand. Your resources are marshaled, ready to respond at their best to every need.

No Pity For Mistakes
Life has no pity for mistakes resulting from haphazard choices. But you need make no haphazard selections.

You have always had your ability, which in itself is not an important asset. You have had sensibility, flexibility and adaptability which makes your ability usable.

An unselfish understanding of the relations of life is of unmeasured value to you in developing your opportunities. You need appreciation of and a willingness to live according to the thought expressed in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

You need to remember, as you go your new way, that the one who helps a little child in the first two years of its life has done more for humanity than can be done during any other period.

Carpenters Cut Their Own Wages

NEWTON, June 8.—The union carpenters comprising the district council of Newton, Waltham, Natick, Needham and Concord have just completed a referendum vote, the result of which is to reduce the wages in the district to 90 cents an hour. An agreement with the master builders goes into effect immediately and will remain effective to April, 1922. The vote was taken in the hope that it would stimulate and stabilize the building industry of the district, and meets with the approval of the builders' association, which is working harmoniously with the journeymen's organization. It is hoped to eliminate all causes of friction by conference and mutual concessions.

Alvin T. Hert Drops Dead

WASHINGTON, June 8.—Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., and republican national committeeman from that state, died suddenly yesterday at the New Willard hotel here. Mr. Hert, who was 56 years of age, had come here to attend the meeting of the republican national committee today. Death was said to have been due to apoplexy. Only recently he had declined to consider appointment by President Harding as ambassador to a foreign country, or as the president's representative on the government reorganization commission. He had also been prominently mentioned after the election as a cabinet possibility, and later as the next republican national committee chairman, but he declared that he could not accept the latter if it were tendered to him.

Woman Found In Swamp

MARLBORO, June 8.—Mrs. Moise Belmont, 90 years old, who had been missing from the home of her niece, Mrs. Louise Buisson, 32 Cross street, since Monday afternoon, was found yesterday in a swampy piece of land between William street and the Westboro road. She had become lost and slept throughout the night, she stated when found.

Wall Paper

IT'S COMING INTO ITS OWN AGAIN

There has been an enthusiastic revival of scenic wall papers.

Those beautiful designs from the manufacturers across the Atlantic are slowly but surely impressing themselves on the public mind.

And in the latest issues of the exclusive magazines of the home that have appeared within the past few weeks, several articles with these beautiful papers as their leading theme.

Among the latest scenic effects is a very distinctive design by Strahan. The pattern repeats in the length of each strip, as do ordinary scenic, but four strips, each 28 inches wide, are required to show the whole patterns in its entire width.

We have this pattern mounted for your inspection. Ask to see Strahan's scenic.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Final performances of "Deception,"

the big feature which comes to Lowell directly from a successful run in the Colonial theatre, Boston, will be given at the Merrimack Square theatre this evening. Tomorrow there will be an entire change of program.

The features for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be "Mother of Mine,"

a big Thomas H. Ince human interest story, and "Seven Years' Bad Luck," a

Max Linder comedy filled with laughs.

"Mother of Mine" is an exceptionally appealing story.

The plot of the play centers around the determination of Robert Sheldon

(Lloyd Hughes), who, fired with ambition, leaves his native village for the experience of a great metropolis. His only friend is a letter written by his mother to a diabolical wizard of finance who, in reality, is the father of the boy, having cruelly deserted him at his infancy on the drunken suggession that his wife's infidelity had made him the son of another.

Despite the boy, gloating with fiendish glee over what he believes the crossing of the class and "the day for hideous revenge upon the tainted son of this youth, he plays the game with crafty cunning, subsequently employing him in what is believed by the boy to be a legitimate firm of financial representatives, but which, it is soon ascertained, is an elite band of operatives who play upon the innocence, and the pocketbooks, of prospective investors.

From this point on the plot becomes increasingly absorbing and the denouement is most surprising.

"Seven Years' Bad Luck" runs the gamut of things which go to make fun. There are any number of exterior and interior settings of a high grade through which the story weaves its way. In some respects it is a lesson to the ever-superstitious.

The fact that all sorts of agencies were pressed into service to make the picture pleasing to the eye as well as the funny-bone. Pata-lial homes, country estates, railroad trains and even a zoo—all these and more too as the film flickers by.

In the leading role, Max Linder (as himself) gives the greatest comedy portrayal of his career. The International News and a short comedy round out the bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
For the farewell week of vaudeville at the B. F. Keith's theatre, Craig Campbell, distinguished young American tenor, is appearing at each performance in a varied program, ranging from ballads to grand opera. He is unquestionably one of the best male singers heard here in vaudeville. The remainder of the bill is of rather unusual timber. Archer & Belford in "The New Jantlor" have a screamingly funny skit, and Eddie Kane and Jay Her-man chatter along and sing uproariously. A varied and most interesting dancing act is presented by Frederick Easter and Beatrice Squire, while Cook and Oatman present a neat singing turn. Others on the bill are Fivick & Jenny, roller skaters, and Beatrice Doane, singer.

RIALTO THEATRE
For the production of Custer's last fight, one of the stirring episodes of Marshal Nelson's spectacular film, "Bob Hampton of Placer," the producer used a technical staff of 50. This is one of the largest organizations of this kind ever employed on one film.

The story deals with the Indian uprisings following the Civil war and treats the gallant fight of an outcast from the American army for his fair name. He was dismissed from the service for a crime which he did not commit and it was only after he had captured the culprit that he was finally rewarded. The program also carries a comedy and the continuation of "The Son of Tarzan."

NEW LAKEVIEW PARK
Tonight is souvenir night at New Lakeview park, and those who enter the great dance hall, won't come away empty handed. Thousands of people are enjoying the many attractions of the popular resort. At attendance records have been broken. The management aids to provide for absolute comfort and real quality of entertainment for patrons, and for this end is sparing no expense. As the first vaudeville feature of the season, the Manns brothers, wire wizards, are making a decided hit, afternoon and evening.

THE STRAND
Hailed as a triumph of photodramatic art, "The Devil," introducing that polished actor, Mr. George Arliss to the screen, continued to interest and entertain large audiences at all performances here at The Strand. Ordinarily a motion picture remains but three days, but because of the extraordinary features and wonderful production "The Devil" will be held for the entire week. It was one of the sensations of the speaking stage. It is its first presentation in Budapest in 1917, and then in Vienna. The following season it invaded the theatres of every capital in Europe and created a furor wherever staged. In America it had two productions, one starring Mr. Arliss and the other Edwin Stevens. Mr. Arliss has repeatedly refused to appear before the motion picture camera, but was finally persuaded to perpetuate his marvellous portrayal of "The Devil," and because of the amazing success that marked his first screen efforts, it is a persons conclusion that he will appear on the silent stage again.

The prodigal that is given with the presentation of "The Devil" is a novelty of original design and conception by Resident Manager Samuel Torgan, and in it appears Charles Barton and Miss Mildred Bonfield. The latter is seen in "The Dance of Death" while Mr. Barton, late with the Lowell players, portrays the character of "Jagan." It is something new to local motion picture circles, and is being greatly appreciated by the patrons.

Glady's Walton in "All Dolled Up" will be shown for the last time today, and beginning tomorrow routine Gelfits will be seen in "It Isn't Being Done This Season."

"WAY DOWN EAST"
The more announcement that the big Griffith film production of the delightful New England play, "Way Down East" is to be seen at the B. F. Keith theatre next week as a special attraction, beginning Monday afternoon, June 13, has already awakened a great amount of interest among the amusement loving people of this city.

The production that we are to have here is the one that has been running at the Tremont Temple, Boston, all season, which ended only a few weeks ago with a record-breaking run to its credit of thirty weeks. It will be given at the B. F. Keith theatre with the same large symphony orchestra and together with special stage effects, a large working crew of stage hands and Mr. Griffith's own special simplex picture machine.

Many Lowell people journeyed to Boston to see the production when it was running there. Of late inquiries have been coming in as to when they were going to this city. The management of the Keith theatre has it for its patrons every point to secure the production, and it is being greatly appreciated by the patrons.

The advance sale for "Way Down East" will start at the B. F. Keith theatre on Thursday, May 12, at 5 a. m. and it is safe to say the seats will be in big demand.

BARBERS' UNION
Routine business was transacted and Herbert Jordan was elected vice president at a meeting of the Barbers' union, which was held last evening at the B. F. Keith theatre. In the chair, other routine meetings were held by the Woolen Weavers' union and the Blacksmiths' union.

THE HEART OF THE BIG GAME COUNTRY

The glories of the Pine Tree state, as "The Sportsman's Paradise," were rehearsed last evening before the members of the St. Anne's church men's club by E. S. Jones, of Boston, official photographer for the B. & M. The address was illustrated by slides made from photographs taken by the lecturer himself. The affair marked the closing of a winter season which is said to have eclipsed all former years from every standpoint of success. So pronounced was the interest in the talk given by Mr. Jones, that arrangements were made for a return lecture to be held here in October. Refreshments were served at the close of the lecture with Hugh Thomas and Reuben White in charge. President E. S. Teeson of the club acted as chairman of the gathering.

WILL REMOVE TREE IN SOUTH COMMON

The big tree in left field on the South common baseball playing area will be removed at once in order to increase the size of the playground and avoid all danger of accident. The park commission came to this decision last evening after viewing the Twi-ght league game and seeing how the tree interfered with playing. In the winter two new trees will be set in away from the playing field and other trees on the common will be replaced with new growth. The left field area will be roped off after the tree is removed so that the fielder will not be hindered by spectators.

The annual production of sea island cotton has been reduced by the boll weevil from 92,000 bales to less than 1000 bales in two years.

Noted Bachelor Rector Has Reason For Wanting To Live To Be 80

THE WAIF IN THE RECTORY

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant has an incentive to live to be 85.

"Wasn't so a few weeks ago. He was 60, a bachelor, pastor of the great stone church of the Ascension, famous as a clergyman, orator, historian and author. There seemed little left to be attained. Dr. Grant could justly feel that he had lived a full life, and was ready for the call.

Today Dr. Grant still is 60 and a bachelor crowned by success and fame—but he has a baby in his house.

And Dr. Grant feels it will take about 25 years to start that baby safely on life's journey. Dr. Grant stumbled across a bundle in his vestibule late one evening in May. Someone had deposited it there. "As I stepped over the bundle it seemed to move," he says. "Leaning down, I saw a baby's hand protruding from one corner. I was a little afraid to touch a baby. I am a bachelor and a lonely man and I feared I might hurt this little one, so I called my housekeeper, Mrs. Graham. She carried the bundle to my study."

"Baby in Our Midst"

"We found we had a little unfortunished girl in our midst. It seemed as though God had sent me a little child.

In the package were dainty baby clothes, all of expensive material, and hand embroidered.

"In a clear, beautiful hand the mother of this baby had written a brief note on a sheet of expensive note paper asking us to care for it. That was all. There was no other trace, no other clue."

"It was after midnight the stores were closed. We couldn't buy the baby a bottle and we were at our wits' end. I summoned a noted doctor and he said the child was less than 10 days old, was of premature birth, but was apparently of good lineage. He showed us how to feed baby with a spoon, but it was a cruel ordeal.

"That night was the most exciting of my life. I retired immediately and Mrs. Graham tried in vain to quiet the little one. About 4 o'clock I arose and relieved her.

"From then on until 9, I just paraded through the house, carrying baby and trying to act like a father. At 9 o'clock the doctor sent me around an experienced baby nurse and our troubles were over. The department of charities and the police department gave me permission to keep baby temporarily.

"Faith Willard"

"A day later I took the little one into the church pinner and christened her 'Faith Willard.' It is a family name, and a name that bespeaks good fortune. I don't know whether I'll adopt Faith. I am 60 years old, and this innocent little girl has been sent to me. She might die in an institution. Too many babies die that way."

So Faith nestles in the luxury of soft cotton in a new baby carriage at the rectory. She pokes a little finger into her mouth and coos and gurgles contentedly. An occasional cry echoes through the rectory heretofore unaltered by a baby's cries. And the lonely bachelor pastor, who was wont to look upon life in retrospect, dreams now of the years to come.

The latest reduction brings the touring car to its second lowest figure in the history of the company. In 1917 it was $380.

This is the final reduction to "bed-rock" prices, it was said. The Ford Motor Car company reduced its prices last fall.

Only very recently it was announced that Ford prices would under no circumstances be reduced further this year. It is thought by some that the reason for this unexpected cut is that some cars were selling at almost the Ford price, and that immediate delivery of these cars threatened to cut in on Ford's orders. The hope of the Ford company, it is thought, is that the new reductions will hold customers in line, even if they are obliged to wait for their cars.

Announcement is made that the wages of the Ford workmen will not be reduced.

MAKING JELLIES

Meeting For Women of Northeastern Middlesex County at High School, Saturday, June 25

A meeting planned especially for the women of Lowell and vicinity has been arranged by the Middlesex County Bureau of Agriculture and Home Economics. This meeting will be from 10 a. m. to 3.30 p. m. at the Lowell high school, corner Kirk and Anne streets, Saturday, June 25.

Prof. W. R. Cole, who is associated with Prof. Chisholm at the department of horticultural manufactures, Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, will bring to the women a wealth of practical information, which is the result of hundreds of household and laboratory tests. He will demonstrate the making of jams, jellies, preservation of fruit juices and demonstrate the subject of the function of sugar in the preservation of fruit. This information will be greatly appreciated by all housewives who still find the making of jelly a more or less uncertain process. The practical jelly test that Prof. Cole will demonstrate means a great saving of time and money to all home jelly makers.

NEW RECRUITS EXAMINED

Forty new recruits went through the physical examination at the state armory in Westford street last evening and of that number 30 were transferred into the service by Capt. W. C. MacBryne. Half of that number will be assigned to the battery, while the others will go to the new combat train.

WHAT A TONIC DOES FOR YOU

AND WHY YOU NEED IT. IN SO MANY INSTANCES WHEN YOU ARE RUN DOWN, NERVOUS OR HAVE HAD TO ENDURE GREAT STRAIN OR WORRY OF ANY KIND.

A tonic is something which puts tone, energy, strength and endurance into you. It gives a push to your heart, making it pump the blood over your body more vigorously; it makes your lungs expand more fully and thereby take up more strength-giving oxygen from the air you breathe; it makes your kidneys more active and carry off the poisons which would otherwise accumulate in the body; it makes your digestive apparatus perform its work better and gives your blood the material it needs for feeding and sustaining your body; it makes your brain act more vigorously and enables you to think more accurately and for long periods without fatigue, thus bringing you greater success in whatever business, profession or undertaking you are engaged in.

When you are run down, nervous, half sick, down-hearted and about ready to give up, experience of many years has shown that one of the best remedies to pull you out of this bad predicament is good old organic iron. But be sure the iron you take is organic. Iron, the kind that is found in plants, and not metallic iron which people usually take. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of Nutraton. It often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, tired out folks in two weeks' time. However, of course, always look for the word "Nutraton" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

LICENSE COMMISSION

A quiet and peaceful session was enjoyed by the members of the license commission last evening, but the affair may prove the calm before the storm, as next Tuesday evening the much mooted question of the pavement boulevard dance pavilion comes up for a hearing, with a new petition for a permit by the owners, and renewed determination on the part of the Lowell General Hospital trustees and other residents to prevent the obtaining of a license.

There were no protests against any of the applications for licenses. The following permits were granted: To sell ice cream on the Lord's day, new 8; renewed 10; to deal in old gold, silver and platinum, 1; to deal in junk, 1; renewed 2; lodging houses, new 1; renewed 2; hawkers and peddlers' licenses, fruit and vegetables, new 2; renewed 3; Ash, 1; and ice cream, 1. A license was granted to Edward Schuman to open a lunch cart at the corner of Canal and East Merrimack streets. Due to the fact that his car overweighs the federal property at the Yarnum building, a license to operate at 5 West street was not granted to John Barrett. The application was laid on the table pending the moving of the cart. A renewal of the innkeeper's license of the T. H. Hoban & Co., to maintain the Richardson hotel was granted.

The charm of this gown of black crepe meteor, which Miss Madge Kennedy wears, is in its simplicity. The slightly full overskirt with the puffing at the hips is exceedingly becoming to the slender figure. Lace cuffs and a matching bib are effective touches.

CINOT HAS PROVED ITS MERIT WITH ME, SAYS A WELL KNOWN LOWELL LADY

Mrs. Driscoll of 226 East Merrimack St., Lowell, Strongly Endorses CINOT as It Helped Her When All Else Failed

"I had a very severe case of indigestion and dyspepsia with chronic constipation of years' duration and had given up hopes of getting any results when I decided to try CINOT," said Mrs. Driscoll.

"I certainly am glad to tell about CINOT as I know that many people are suffering from stomach trouble today that can be helped with CINOT if they will only take it, and this little article I hope will convince some of those sufferers."

Vocational School Baseball Team is Nearing Close of Very Successful Season

Front Row—Nadeau, ss; Martel, p; O'Donnell, captain and c; Kelly, 3b; Gallagher, 1b; Melnis, 2b. Back Row—John H. Gillick, faculty manager and coach; Gibbons, utility; Hunt, cf; Ouellette, rf; Allen, lf; Austin, utility, and Fullerton, p.

Despite obvious handicaps under which they have labored, the members of the Lowell Vocational school baseball team have had a most successful season, defeating some of the best amateur outfits in this section of the state and hanging up a record of which the school may be proud.

Especially notable is the record of this nine inasmuch as this is the first year that the Vocational school has had a really organized team with a professional coach. The team has suffered only two defeats in six games played. The season's record to date is as follows:

Vocational school 21, Chelmsford 10.

Vocational school 11, Mitchell Boys' school 1.

Vocational school 4, Westford 9.

Vocational school 20, Continuation school 1.

Vocational school 3, Wilmington 8.

Vocational school 11, Westford 1.

From this it will be seen that the Vocational school has administered at least one defeat to every team it has met with the exception of Wilmington, a nine made up of much older players. However, the two teams are to meet again tomorrow afternoon on the South common and the local outfit hopes to even matters.

Although defeated in its first game with Westford, the nine came back strong yesterday and gave the suburban aggregation an 11 to 1 trouncing on the South common. It is probable that a "rubber" game will be played with the Westford team before the end of the season.

Next Wednesday afternoon the team will journey to Chelmsford where it will play the strong nine of that town. Then it is considered that the hours at the Vocational school are much longer than in the other schools of the city and that it is often very difficult for the boys to get away at all in the afternoon, the success of the baseball team is worthy of more than passing recognition. The lack of proper grounds for practice in the vicinity of the school is another handicap with which the team has had to contend.

The team has been coached and directed by John H. Gillick of the school faculty, and much of its success may be traced directly to his untiring efforts. The boys themselves have practiced faithfully and regularly, despite their handicaps. Principal Thomas P. Fisher has also assisted materially in the success of the team. The members of the team are as follows: Nadeau, ss; Martel, p; O'Donnell, captain and c; Kelly, 3b; Gallagher, 1b; Melnis, 2b; Gibbons, utility; Hunt, cf; Ouellette, rf; Allen, lf; Austin, utility; Fullerton, p.

GROH'S SALARY

BY NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE. CHICAGO, June 8.—Cost of being the "champion holdout" of the big league baseball this season has proven costly.

to Heinie Groh, the Reds' star third baseman.

Up to the time he signed his contract, June 2, he had lost just $3093.50, and his salary, which is to be at the old rate of $10,000 per year, does not start until he is reinstated by Judge Landis.

Groh's contract calls for $1765.62 per month. On this basis his $10,000 salary has been dwindling at the rate of $104.62 per week or $27.30 per day. Groh signed his contract in order to stop this loss of money to himself and to get something out of the wreckage of his holdout.

FITZ WON TITLE FROM CORBETT IN 1897

The heavyweight championship slipped out of the grasp of an American for the first time on St. Patrick's day, 1897, when Robert Fitzsimmons, a "lanky" Australian, pounded James J. Corbett into submission in the 14th round.

This occasion was the first of its kind at which moving pictures were taken. Both fighters enjoyed the kinesthetic rights, as the title money from the movies was denominated at that time.

It was also the beginning of woman's entry into the role of spectator at ring contests. The fight was held at Carson City, Nev., and all of the newspapers made much over the presence of 20 women among the 4000 seat-holders. One of these women was Mrs. Fitzsimmons, who sat just behind her husband's seconds and encouraged him on to victory.

The Australian weighed only 167 pounds while Corbett entered the ring at 183. The referee, a former prizefighter in the sixth round, but lacked the finishing punch.

In the final round, Fitzsimmons sprang from his corner furiously and planted his right glove over Corbett's heart. The champion staggered from the fierce blow and Fitzsimmons leaped into him with flashing rights and lefts to the stomach that brought the battle to a close.

A large crowd of fans who favored the Australian jumped into the ring and surrounded him, seeking to grasp his mitt. Corbett, opening his eyes, flamed with anger. He charged through the circle of admirers and the two athletes were locked in a vicious clinch. Outsiders had to jump in and separate them.

THE INSIDER

English golf titles are about the most elusive things you can think of.

Carpenter will furnish the first real moving target practice Dempsey ever shot at.

Dempsey has spilled the beans. He says that he and Georges have many secrets no American must know about until July 2.

The only cups the American golfers will bring back from England will be the hiccup.

Dempsey knocked out! It happened in a ball game. They never use that word with Dempsey's name in boxing unless they tie an object to it.

They ought to let pitchers work in a trench instead of on a mound. They have to duck a lot of drives.

Carpenter is the odds-on favorite to beat Dempsey among Frenchmen in everything except betting.

Benny Leonard says he will retire from the ring after about four more lucrative bouts. But they must be lucrative.

The Baltimore Orioles have hit their pre-season dope stick. They're over a hundred points to the good and still widening the breach.

MISS COLLETT LOST OUT BY ONE STROKE

BROOKLINE, June 8.—Supremacy in eastern golf was denied Miss Glendon Collett, the youthful Providence star, by one stroke in the play for the title at the Country club yesterday. The girl, 17 years of age, was runner up to the winner, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of Philadelphia, in a former national champion in both days of the match. She clinched second honors at the last hole with a four, the only four of the day at that hole.

Mrs. Vanderbeck and Miss Collett led the field of 34 players, including four other former champions, at the end of the first 18 holes. Mrs. Vanderbeck was around in 58 and her youthful opponent in 59.

The Providence girl gained two on the champion with a four at the third, but lost the advantage when she took a five to Mrs. Vanderbeck's three at the seventh. At the ninth, Miss Collett required eight strokes and Mrs. Vanderbeck, on a match play basis, was two up at the turn. Miss Collett was in better form going home.

She evened the issue at the 12th with a five to Mrs. Vanderbeck's seven, was one down at the 13th, became two down at the 16th, where Mrs. Vanderbeck got a three, and came within a stroke of tying the titlist with her unequalled four at the home hole. The card of each for the 18 holes was 59.

Miss Collett had come home in 41 strokes, the best showing of the day, and at crucial points in good form.

HARVARD DROPS CATCHER BLAIR

CAMBRIDGE, June 8.—The dismissal from the Harvard varsity nine of Austin Blair, first string catcher, was announced to the college today. The action was taken by Capt. Emmons.

POLICE METHODS ARRANGED

said Mr. Lavelle, "not only because they are policemen, but because of the inconsistent statements which they have made on the stand."

The attorney referred to the contention of the defense that Gill had not been shot, but had been injured by tripping over a wire, and said that the testimony of Officer Conney showed that he believed that Gill had been shot. The attorney asserted that the spot where the officers claimed Gill had fallen was one that the officers could not have seen from the places where they had testified they stood.

EASTERN STARS IN CHICAGO TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, June 8.—The first group of eastern entries in the national collegiate track and field meet to be held here in June 18, were received here today.

Earl Thomson, world champion high hurdler, headed the list. He will represent Dartmouth, and probably will be accompanied by several of his teammates. It was announced.

Bates entered the Baker twins, one of whom has a record of 5:32 in the two mile run while the other has covered the one mile distance in 4:22.

Other eastern schools entering the meet today were Yale, Amherst, Wesleyan University of Connecticut and Rochester university.

More than 15 colleges have entered and it is expected that approximately 500 athletes will take part in the contests.

The meet will be under the auspices of the national collegiate association which announces it as the first really national meet in the country.

The plaintiff's witnesses are consistent in their statements, that he fell as soon as the shot was fired. Officer Judge says that he did not pick Gill up after the shot was fired, but that he treated him the same as any other person under arrest. Hamilton says that Judge picked him up."

In the Police Station

Referring to alleged happenings in the police station after Gill had been sent there, Mr. Lavelle said that Dr. Tighe, who examined Gill, was a close associate of the police department, and that if he did not find any evidence of a bullet wound, as had been testified, it was strange that he had sent the plaintiff to the hospital to have an X-ray plate made of a mere scratch that might have been received in a fall. The fact that Dr. Tighe sent Gill to the hospital for X-ray treatment "shows that he had some good reason to believe that there was a bullet wound," said Mr. Lavelle.

"Hamilton has testified," continued the attorney, "that his gun went off accidentally while he was trying to put it in his front trousers pocket. Is it probable that anyone would put a gun in a pocket that way, with the safety catch off, just previous to starting to chase a man?" asked the attorney. "If the gun had been discharged as claimed it would have struck the officer himself."

Mr. Lavelle referred to Hamilton's conduct on the day of the alleged shooting as "one of the most damaging pieces of evidence in the case against the defense."

Why So Worried?

"He says that he did not fire the shot that hit Gill," said the lawyer, "and if he did not why was he so worried afterwards. He, or somebody, told the doctors at the police station Gill had been shot. If Hamilton had not shot Gill, why did he not deny the accusation that was made at the corner of Central and Market streets later that he had been involved in a shooting accident? Why did he go to the scene the next day and find the piece of wire on which it is claimed Gill fell?"

Referring to the testimony of Edward S. Walsh, a witness for the plaintiff, Mr. Lavelle said that he did not wish to come into court and testify. He was present at the time of the shooting of Gill. "He had seen what had happened to one boy who fell into Hamilton's hands," said the speaker.

In closing Mr. Lavelle said: "Here was a police officer with a determination to 'get somebody' and 'get him' at the suggestion of another officer, and after he had 'got him' he stood over him with a loaded gun in his hand. Gill's remark at the time, 'You've got me,' was not a joke. It was a statement of fact. The next moment he might be sent into eternity."

How He Was Hurt

In completing this morning a summary for the defense begun yesterday afternoon, Attorney J. J. Kerwin asserted that Officer Conney had asked Gill at the police station how he got hurt and that Gill had not said a word about being shot but that he had told Conney he had fallen over a wire.

"You have Conney, Hamilton and Judge, who all say they saw Gill fall," said Mr. Kerwin. "If you do not believe that Hamilton has told the truth because he has a financial interest in the case, what are you going to say about the testimony of Conney and Judge? The sole question in this case is whether you are to believe three police officers or the unsupported story of the plaintiff."

In his charge to the jury, Judge Franklin T. Hammond stated that the police officer had the right to use reasonable force in effecting an arrest. As the officers for which Gill was arrested is not a felony, the officer would not have the right to shoot. If would have had the right to use force short of inflicting a wanton injury. "Wanton and willful injury is different from that caused by negligence," said the judge. "The question for you to determine is whether the officer inflicted reckless and wanton injury."

REFUGEE CAMP AT PUEBLO, COLO.

Greatest Step Toward Restoration of Normal Conditions in Flood District

Famous Doughnut Girl and the Sallies Assist—45 Bodies in Morgues

PUEBLO, Colo., June 8.—Establishment of a refugee camp today to receive those made homeless by flood is regarded as Pueblo's greatest step toward restoration of normal conditions. Refugees will be removed from various public buildings to the tent city. There are about 2000 homeless in the city, many of whom are Mexicans and virtually helpless.

Relief work was rapidly being systematized. The lighting system was being steadily improved, and with the expected installation today of a water purifier, the solution of another vexing problem had fair to be solved.

Twenty-five Salvation Army workers are here from Denver, Colorado Springs and Trinidad, and the meals for the refugee camp have been turned over to them.

Adjutant Margaret Sheldon, one of those who made the famous doughnuts in France, is in the party. She will turn out huge piles of doughnuts here. Forty-two bodies of flood victims were in the morgues of the city today, but the authorities said many bodies probably had not been recovered.

First Train Leaves Pueblo
DENVER, Colo., June 8.—The first train to leave Pueblo since the floods of last week arrived in Denver early today bringing 375 refugees and tourists who were marooned there.

INAUGURAL BY M. I. T. PRESIDENT

Dr. Nichols Urges More Wholesome Relations Between Capital and Labor

And Application of Scientific Knowledge to Processes of Industry

BOSTON, June 8.—More intensive application of scientific knowledge and research to the processes of industry, and the cultivation of more wholesome relations between labor and management, were presented as the two outstanding industrial problems of the times in the inaugural address which Dr. Ernest Fox Nichols delivered today as president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Both these problems, he said, might rightly claim attention in any modern scheme of technical education.

Distinguishing between research in applied science which has a practical objective, and that in pure science which seeks the discovery of new knowledge without thought of immediate material benefit to anybody, Dr. Nichols urged that technical schools owe to modern industry the more intensive cultivation of research with increasing emphasis on pure science. Every possible means should be used, he said, to train up more men in pure science, men competent to enter the fruitful and important field of research to supply the rapidly increasing demand for workers in the laboratories of progressive industry.

Discussing the relations between labor and management, Dr. Nichols pointed out that the older or traditional attitude toward labor unrest was that the questions involved were purely economic ones.

"Now the true essence of successful industry," he continued, "is mutual respect between the employee and manager, willing co-operation, a sense of mutual opportunity and responsibility and a shared personal or institutional loyalty. But these factors are human rather than economic. Economic necessity alone is not only powerless to create them, but often operates to weaken or destroy them. Human relationships in industry have now and always been had, and whether recognized or not, they have economic consequences for the state of a laborer's mind, more even than the state of his purse, determines his acts.

"Our technical schools are training the future brainworkers and managers of industry. We may, therefore, well ask ourselves, at this time, if there is anything we can do beyond what we are now doing to train our students to understand more fundamentally and to meet more successfully the gravest of all their future responsibilities, the organization and management of men—a responsibility which they and we owe, not to industry alone, but to the stability of the nation."

Dr. Nichols said he knew no better measure of a man's real education than the adequacy of his thought and action in whatever actual situations he might find himself for adequacy of thought and action implies some hold on world experience. To train such men and women should be the dominant ideal of attaining it," he said.

Dr. Nichols said he was sure the same broad educational rights and responsibilities as other professional and non-professional men, yet amid the growing complexities and perplexities of technical education there has been and is a steady and strong temptation to introduce more detailed technical courses at the expense of other background building studies. This temptation, he said, is a constant and dangerous yielding to it, must nevertheless be steadily and firmly resisted.

Informally calling upon Dr. Nichols to accept the presidency, Dr. Elihu Thomson, acting president since the death of President MacLaurin, declared the needs of such an institution demanded a "rare man" as its leader. The governing board, he said, felt that Dr. Nichols was the man for whom they had sought.

Tribute to New President

He referred to the incoming president as a man "of highest attainment in science, whose original work is known throughout the world, the recipient of many honors here and abroad, chosen to membership in the few societies of the highest rank, experienced as professor and teacher, and a most successful administrator as president of Dartmouth college for eight years."

To men who have preceded Dr. Nichols, earnestly supported by faculty, alumni and friends of the school, Dr. Thompson attributed the technological success in the little more than a half century of its existence, in establishing upon a firm basis technical education and engineering training. Their efforts, he said, had led to the general recognition of the value and necessity for the kind of training for which the school had stood, "work founded on thorough scientific research and investigation as against rule of thumb or traditional methods merely; not a narrow specialization, but by learning which looks forward as well as backward; that uses the history as a means of inspiration for further future advance and achievement."

Prof. Henry P. Talbot, chairman of the faculty, in welcoming Dr. Nichols, declared the activities of the world war had enabled the public to discover that the college professor, after all, is a useful citizen, who can and does give good account of himself in time of emergency. During the war period he added, the college professor rendered service which was distinguished for maturity of conception and systematic execution.

The well nigh uninterrupted career of prosperity of the Institute was declared by President A. Lawrence Lowell in the inaugural ceremonies to have been one of the impressive things in the history of the community and of national education.

PLUMBERS NOTIFIED OF WAGE REDUCTION

The local master plumbers have notified the journeymen plumbers that a 10 per cent reduction in wages will go into effect at a date to be set later and the employers are now awaiting action on the part of the union to either accept or reject the proposition. In the meantime everyone is working and as one man stated this morning, all is serene.

The journeymen plumbers are now receiving $1 an hour and it is the intention of the master plumbers to reduce their wages to the same level as that of the steamfitters, who were recently given a reduction of 10 cents an hour, and noted to that effect was served on the Journeymen Plumbers' union a few days ago, but as yet no action has been taken by the latter organization.
